

'Axis Sally' graduates college

DELAWARE — World War II radio propaganda announcer "Axis Sally" — Mildred Elizabeth Gillars — graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University here Sunday at the age of 72. She received a degree in speech. Dressed in her cap and gown, the 72-year-old graduate smiled as she accepted her diploma. Most of the persons did not know who she was, as the school, at her request, did not publicize her graduation. She resumed her schooling after 12 years imprisonment for treason.

Blind lawyer

SAN FRANCISCO — Ternry Tom, 22, of Honolulu, a blind-since-birth student who wanted to be "more than a worker in a broom factory" was awarded a law degree Sunday by the University of San Francisco. "People said I could never do it, and sometimes I've been afraid they were right," he said. After a semester at the San Francisco district attorney's office, his professors agreed Tom would be at a "disadvantage" as a lawyer, but felt he would be a competent attorney.

Brandt unphased by protests

JERUSALEM — Unphased by protestors hurling an egg and leaflets, West German Chancellor Willy Brandt continued his official visit in Israel Sunday, the first by a German head of government. Brandt said he held "interesting" talks with Israeli officials and hoped the talks "will be to the advantage in exchanging cooperation and understanding in spite of the terrible past of my own country and this country."

Viet Cong changes battle plan

SAIGON — The Viet Cong launched a campaign to consolidate its position in South Vietnam as a rival government and to gain recognition in advance of a new cease-fire agreement. Talks begin this week in Paris between the Viet Cong and South Vietnamese to establish elections, set up a National Council of National Reconciliation and Concord and other provisions of the Jan. 28 peace accord.

Family slaughtered

BOSTON — Having once complained his family was a "noose around my neck," a heavy-set security guard apparently shot to death his wife and five of his children and took his own life. The eldest daughter and only survivor in the George O'Leary family discovered the bodies when she returned to the family home Sunday in the quiet, middle class residential neighborhood in Boston.

Satellite launched

CAPE KENNEDY — A small unmanned astronomy explorer satellite raced accurately toward the moon Sunday to eavesdrop on the universe. Explorer 49 is designed to conduct the most extensive study yet of low frequency radio signals emitted from the Milky Way galaxy and beyond. It will also listen to radio noise emitted from the sun, earth and Jupiter.

Dean briefs Weiker

Link tightens around Haldeman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A member of the Senate Watergate Committee virtually confirmed Sunday that John W. Dean told him a fellow White House aide admitted destroying documents showing H. R. Haldeman knew about "actual data" obtained from Watergate wiretaps.

Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., said "I cannot disavow the story" when asked about a New York Times report that Dean had given him that information in an interview

May 3 —three days after Dean was fired as presidential legal counsel and Haldeman left his critical White House post.

Weicker said further details of a report he had given his colleagues on the Watergate committee would be made known if the panel gave its approval.

The Times said it had obtained a copy of Weicker's three-page report without his knowledge. The senator made his comments later in New York during an interview to be broadcast Sunday night by WNEW-TV.

Weicker also said he felt President Nixon was "holding back" information he had about Watergate, adding: "I have no evidence he knew about it, but his handling (of the scandal) has fallen far short of the mark."

Dean was said to have told Weicker that White House aide Gordon C. Strachan had told him he destroyed the documents on Haldeman's orders right after the June 17, 1972, break-in at the Democratic National Committee's Watergate offices.

Haldeman, who resigned as White House chief of staff April 30, has acknowledged in sworn testimony that his office may have received reports of conversations monitored at the Democrats' offices by employees of the Nixon re-election committee. But he said he never read any of those reports.

Dean also reportedly told Weicker that former Attorney General John N. Mitchell was dismissed last summer as manager of President Nixon's re-election campaign after the Watergate break-in. Mitchell has said he resigned voluntarily and never authorized spying on the Democrats.

Dean's alleged version was consistent with an account offered by former White House aide Charles W. Colson, who told The Times in an interview that he understood Nixon "sacked" Mitchell for "letting the Watergate happen."

In other developments: —The Finance Committee to Re-elect the President said it is paying legal fees for former campaign employees in all proceedings except criminal trials. Reporting assets of $4.8 million, the committee also said Finance Chairman Maurice H. Stans is being paid a retroactive salary of $67,500 for his work last year.

—A new Gallup poll found signs that the Republicans could lose as many as 40 seats in the Senate and House next year, partly because of the Watergate scandal.

—Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton said in a television interview (Face the Nation — CBS) that the government has developed "a kind of methodology of surveillance that has gotten out of hand ..." He said he was "not sure,"

Nixon, advisers review economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon Sunday night returned from a long weekend in Florida where he rested in preparation for meetings today with his chief economic and foreign affairs advisers.

The White House said Nixon would meet first with Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, special consultant John B. Connally and Cost of Living Director John Dunlop. The President planned then to go directly into a session with Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, who has been laying the groundwork for next week's visit of Soviet Communist Party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

White House officials also said Nixon would make a trip to the Midwest late this week. His principal goal will be to dedicate Friday a library commemorating the late Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen in Dirksen's hometown of Pekin, Ill.

Meanwhile, the White House continued its silence on the Watergate affair.

There were signs Nixon would move sometime this week to toughen Phase III economic controls, particularly since all of his top economic advisers met for several hours in Washington Saturday on his orders to discuss a broad range of options to curb continued inflation.

The White House gave no hints on possible action to bring North and South Vietnam to terms on the Indochina ceasefire.

Kissinger suspended talks with Hanoi negotiator Le Duc Tho in Paris Saturday and flew back to Washington without reaching the accord American officials had expected. Reports that South Vietnam was responsible for the deadlock on language of a joint communique were expected to fuel a drive in Congress on legislation to cut off funds for the bombing of Cambodia.

Congressional action on antiwar measures was suspended last week while Kissinger was in Paris. Although Kissinger plans to return to the talks Tuesday, it may be difficult for administration forces in Congress to hold back antiwar legislation much longer.

Pressure also was building in Congress to force the administration to freeze wages and prices, with a Senate vote scheduled Wednesday.

Nixon's weekend at his Key Biscayne villa was a studied attempt to avoid a crisis atmosphere. The President, after arriving at Key Biscayne at midday Friday, kept in touch by phone with Kissinger and his senior economic advisers, but his chief of staff, Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., was the only aide at his side through the weekend.

Nixon may create energy cabinet post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton said Sunday the administration would seek to create a new cabinet-level department to consolidate government efforts to meet the energy crisis.

Morton said an "energy czar" also would be necessary at a policy-making level in the White House. He indicated the administration's formal proposal for both the new department and the new White House post will be presented soon.

He appeared on the CBS-TV program "Face the Nation."

Morton said the proposed "Department of Energy and Natural Resources" would include virtually all of the present Interior Department, along with the U. S. Forest Service from the Agriculture Department; the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration from the Commerce Department, and certain planning functions from the Army Corps of Engineers.

Asked what was wrong with President Nixon's 1971 plan to establish a Department of Natural Resources, Morton replied:

"I think it didn't reflect the mood for a more consolidated program of energy development and energy conservation. I think it was a little weak in that respect."

Morton made clear he wanted to head the new department, saying "I'd like to have the job ... but I certainly would understand if he (the President) wanted somebody else."

Morton played down the seriousness of the current gasoline shortage.

"Actually the shortage is so small, such a small piece of the action, that a 2 per cent change in the demand would change the whole picture," he said.

"I think we're making a mountain out of a molehill."

He speculated that the government would not raise the gasoline tax, but predicted gasoline prices "are going to go up for the next four or five years."

"It was a buyer's market, it now is a seller's market," he said.

The Interior chief also defended the oil companies, disputing claims that they were scheming to put some independent dealers out of business. And he questioned arguments that farmers would be hard hit by a gasoline shortage.

"We haven't found a tractor that's been stopped," Morton said, although "there may be some individual hardships here and there."

He said the nation's large oil companies were cooperating to solve the shortages. "I think the oil companies have been maligned," he said. "I believe they are good faith people ... good citizens ... good corporate citizens."

Utilities predict more brownouts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A number of major municipally-owned electric utilities anticipate brownouts in the near future because they cannot get enough fuel at a reasonable price, a spokesman said Sunday.

Alex Radin, general manager of the American Public Power Association (APPA), asked the government's Oil Policy Hearing Committee to give electric utilities "the highest priority" in the government fuel allocation program. The APPA claims to represent 1,400 electric utilities in 48 states.

Radin also called for an enforced system of price controls on fuel during the national shortage.

The Oil Policy Hearing Committee begins hearings today on the federal government's voluntary fuel allocation program, which went into effect May 21.

"A number of APPA members have reported to us," Radin said, "that they are unable to secure adequate oil supplies for the summer and winter of 1973 and some major utilities face extensive brownouts if their fuel supply situation does not improve in the very near future."

Radin said the Cost of Living Council has provided fuel purchasers no protection "against the most unconscionable price gouging."

Many electric utilities, which use petroleum products to generate electricity, have been hit with drastic price increases this year, he said.

"It should be obvious that price increases of this magnitude are completely out of proportion to any recent price increases in crude oil," he said. "One can only conclude that some oil suppliers are taking advantage of a shortage situation to charge all the traffic will bear."

Tunkhannock may take no action against raceway

LONG POND — "A small turn-out, nice crowd and no trouble" was the response of Tunkhannock Supervisor Paul Blakeslee to an outdoor concert held Saturday at the Pocono International Raceway.

The concert, open only to those with tickets for the Goodrich Radial Challenge Series and the Camel 500, was the first direct challenge to an amusement ordinance passed by Tunkhannock supervisors, requiring permits for all outdoor entertainment.

Blakeslee, who was at the raceway from 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Saturday, said, "I don't believe we (the supervisors) should do anything about enforcing the permit for this concert."

He pointed out only race patrons could attend the concert, since tickets for the Goodrich series were required for admittance to the track.

Lester Brown, solicitor for the township, told supervisors last week that, in his opinion, "if the concert is held without a permit, the raceway would be violating the ordinance."

Blakeslee said he only had a chance to speak to one other supervisor since the concert, but noted there would be a private meeting between supervisors and their solicitor to discuss the issue. The meeting will be held Tuesday night in Brown's office in Stroudsburg.

"I really don't think any action will be taken, because everything went off so well," Blakeslee said.

He estimated the turn-out at the concert at a "little over 1,000." Raceway officials had not expected attendance to exceed 5,000, according to reports late last week.

Jack Kalins, raceway director for corporate operations, said the raceway paid for the entire concert, which featured Seatrain and Ralph, two rock groups.

Senators see little chance for peace through politics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee Sunday issued a report concluding that the United States stands little chance of bringing peace in Indochina through political maneuvering.

The report, based on information compiled by two staff members who toured Southeast Asia in April, said President Nixon's administration "may have miscalculated badly" if it thought the Communists "would abandon their lifelong objectives or that (South Vietnam's) President (Nguyen Van) Thieu would be willing to risk the tenuous security won for him by the United States."

Detailing the extent of U.S. military involvement in Thailand, Laos, Cambodia and Vietnam, the report found that despite the continued military aims of the North, "the balance seems to favor the South Vietnamese government, especially when the deterrent of American air power is added to the equation."

As for the future course of events in Indochina, the study saw "little prospect that peace will be restored by political means, given the apparent continued determination of Hanoi (and the Viet Cong) to displace the existing political structure in the South, and given the South Vietnamese government's adamant refusal to afford either the Communists or the non-Communist opposition any meaningful role in political life."

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., chairman of the subcommittee which issued the study, said it showed "we are still deeply involved in Southeast Asia."

The study said Communist forces in Laos "are in such a strong position, and the government forces are so enfeebled, that the North Vietnamese may be able to leave their Pathet Lao allies to their own devices ... "In Cambodia, it is difficult to imagine a political settlement which would not accord the insurgents a significant, if not controlling, political role and even more difficult to imagine a military victory for government forces ...," the report said.

The subcommittee study said North Vietnam and the Communists in the South "may see no alternative but to renew the military struggle."

West End wanderings

Terrapin dinner

By MAUREEN RUFÉ
Pocono Record Reporter

BRODHEADSVILLE — A West End delicacy, noted for its indescribable taste for nearly 100 years, practically wandered up to my landlady's door last week.

Unfortunately for him, the slow-moving creature has now become the main fixing for an old-style terrapin dinner.

In case you don't happen to know exactly what a terrapin dinner is, it consists largely of turtle meat — terrapin, of course, being another name for edible North American land turtles.

When Mrs. Altomose's grandson first picked the turtle up by the tail, his size was almost unbelievable. His shell was nearly 17 inches in length and one snap of his huge jaws would have been enough to chop off a small hand.

My landlady, an old pro at preparing terrapin dinners (she used to prepare huge annual terrapin feasts at Ross Common in Saylorsburg nearly 40 years ago) warned me not to get too close to the head.

Mrs. Altomose explained that with such big turtles, many people hung them up on clothes lines by their back feet, put a stick near the mouth, and when the turtle took hold of it, his head was cut off.

She intended to scald him with hot water the same as one does with live lobsters or crabs.

A huge green garbage can was used for the operation. The turtle was put in the bottom, scalding water was put on top of him and he was dead in just a few seconds.

The shell gets soft when the hot water is put on, Mrs. Altomose explained, so it is an easy task to split the bottom shell in half and lift out the turtle meat.

It must be then soaked overnight in salt water and all the little yellow fat bubbles are removed. Everything is used except the liver.

Then the meat is cooked on the stove about three or four hours until tender. Some goes into a thick dark, gravy like soup — called snapper soup in restaurants. The rest is then browned in a frying pan with butter.

One of the most interesting aspects of the turtle is that is is said to contain seven different kinds of meat.

When it was cleaned, although it looks a great deal like chicken, I did see many different shades of the cream colored meat.

In checking the history of the turtle I discovered that the Chinese commonly believe that a person can acquire the longevity of the turtle by eating its flesh and in the early 1900's these people were responsible for buying 85 per cent of the turtles from the New York Fulton Fish Market.

As early as 1780 a French officer named Blanchard described a turtle picnic in America — the main course was a 400-pound turtle imported from the West Indies.

The terrapin dinner has actually not been held as yet. Mrs. Altomose, also an accomplished psychologist in her own right, has revealed that it is essential to freeze the meat and delay the dinner until the guests forget what the live turtle looks like.

According to my landlady, now is the time of year that the turtles "move", so you are likely to see any number of the little creatures wandering along the roadway when you take a trip.

Why don't you start collecting them and have a terrapin picnic of your own? You might be surprised, according to many West Enders, as to the real delicacy.

Spraying policy criticized

MILFORD — As the Gypsy moth began to invade Pike County in force last week county commissioners blasted the state's spraying policy.

Calling the state's gypsy moth solution "short-sighted," commissioners said that insufficient spraying of the insects had let Pike residents in for a "situation anything but pleasant."

"If they had followed our plan," said commissioner Warner Depuy, "fewer residents would have been bothered by the gypsy moth."

The county originally asked that the state spray 500 feet deep along all county roads. The total requested acreage for treatment was almost 85,000 acres.

The Department of Environmental Resources (DER) is spraying only 15,000 acres.

Asking that county residents put "pressure on Harrisburg," the commissioners urged persons bothered by the moth to protest to the governor and DER.

P.V. girl vies for Laurel queen

BRODHEADSVILLE — Miss Debbie Bowker, a senior at Pleasant Valley High School, has been chosen by her classmates to represent the school as "Miss Pleasant Valley" at the 32nd Annual Pennsylvania State Laurel Festival being held in Wellsboro Wednesday through Sunday.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lenart Bowker of Effort.

Miss Bowker won the title of "Homcoming Queen" and received nomination for Pocono Snow Princess. Debbie is co-captain of the girls' Hockey Team and an active member of St. Mary's Episcopal Church in Wind Gap. Her hobbies include horseback riding, ice skating, snowmobiling and swimming. She plans to study to become a veterinary assistant.

Among the many activities planned to honor Miss Pleasant Valley and the other visiting queens will be the welcoming ceremonies at 10 a.m. Friday, a tour of the Grand Canyon of Pennsylvania at 1:30 p.m. and the queens prevue at 8 p.m. on-stage at the auditorium of the Wellsboro Senior High School.

On Saturday, June 16, the queens will attend a breakfast and radio show at the Penn Wells Hotel at 8 a.m., ride on the beautifully decorated floats during the Laurel Parade which begins at 1:30 p.m. and return to the Penn Wells for a banquet at 6 p.m.

That evening at 8 p.m., the coronation ceremonies, the highlight of the festival, will take place.

Courthouse schedules new hours

MILFORD — As of July 2, the Pike County Courthouse will be open six-and-a-half hours Monday through Friday and remain closed Saturday.

New hours will be 8:30 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

All offices will be closed Saturday. However, the commissioner's office will be open the two Saturdays prior to voter registration deadlines for elections.

Nixon's revenue sharing faucet not even dripping

By DONALD R. LARRABEE
Ottawa News Service
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — With Capitol Hill awash with the "Watergate", President Nixon's special revenue sharing faucet hasn't even begun to drip in Congress.

Mr. Nixon's heralded attempts to reshape funding programs for community development, welfare, education and law enforcement have been given only a cursory airing to date and, at best, won't emerge from committees for floor action before next fall. They may never emerge.

A Republican committee staff member commented last week: "Watergate is the culmination of the battle of the budget. It's really loosened everything up. The White House just can't keep our people in line now."

But even before the Watergate dam broke, the Democratic congress was cool to the Nixon concept of replacing the hundreds of categorical grant programs with the block-grant approach, known as special revenue sharing.

And in recent weeks, a number of Federal court decisions in education and other fields have blunted the President's campaign to pressure the Congress into action. The courts have increasingly restricted Mr. Nixon's power to withhold appropriated funds from past congressional authorizations.

At this juncture, congressional observers believe the President's best prospect lies in the urban development field. The so-called Better Communities Act — the new name for special revenue sharing for the cities — would scrap seven existing categorical grant programs for community development and replace them with a $2.3 billion fund which could be used at the discretion of local officials.

The details were submitted by the White House April 19 and introduced in both houses of Congress but there have been no hearings. The Better Communities plan has general support from the major urban lobby forces and the block-grant concept has always received lip service in Congress. It is conceivable that the approach will be incorporated in a housing-aid bill later this year or early in 1974.

Earlier this year, the President asked Congress to enact a law enforcement revenue-sharing program which would eliminate some of the strings now attached to spending under the law enforcement assistance act. (LEAA). Authority for the LEAA program expires June 30. Hearings in the House Judiciary Committee indicate little enthusiasm for the whole Nixon package.

Major obstacle to Congressional approval of the special revenue sharing plan is the feeling that Washington should go slow in giving up all Federal control over the use of law enforcement funds. Governors, however, back the idea because, they say, the present strings make the package difficult for them to open and put into use.

Continuation of the LEAA program in some form is likely and the key question is how many of the strings will be cut off.

Education revenue sharing was first proposed two years ago and got a chilly reception. There is no indication that the climate has improved any this year. The best bet is that Congress will continue the existing categorical grant programs for elementary and secondary education.

While hearings have begun on the Better Schools Act (education revenue sharing), committee members have challenged almost every feature of the Nixon approach, from its distribution formula to what some members claim would mean more, rather than less, red tape.

The President wants about $2.8 billion to consolidate some 32 categorical grant programs into one revenue-sharing program covering five broad categories in education. Critics claim almost every state would suffer a cut in education funds.

HEW Secretary Caspar Weinberger is also deeply involved in trying to sell Mr. Nixon's new social service regulations which were published May 1 and which are scheduled to take effect July 1, unless Congress enacts countering legislation which seems probable.

At issue are 75 per cent Federal matching grants to the states for services such as child day care, supplementary health care and employment services for actual and potential welfare recipients.

After it appeared last year that states were developing plans to make massive use of the social services funding program, Congress itself put a $2.5 billion annual ceiling on Federal outlays for these services and gave the job of writing regulations to HEW. The rules produced by HEW are aimed at assisting only the most needy and Congress is hearing from those who would be left out.

Hearings now underway in the Senate Finance Committee will determine whether Congress will write its own guidelines for social service spending or force HEW to change its rules. Either way, it's just one more headache for the Nixon Administration in its efforts to reshape the Federal system.

Big decision already made

Graduation weekend has come and gone. It was, no doubt, an eagerly awaited moment for those scores of high school seniors who marched up to podiums throughout the area to grasp that precious diploma.

Precious? Sure. No matter what the actual worth of that piece of paper is, it represents many hours, days, weeks and years of effort — and it represents a step up to that job or that college beyond reach without that formalized scroll.

Formal education has become so much more important to today's youth than it has ever been. When we were sweating through those sometimes-agonizing high school years, we were tempted at times to forget the whole thing. There were jobs available, after all, and our parents had made out all right without that scrap of paper, hadn't they?

The feeling was sometimes heightened by the sight of those pals who had dropped out and gotten jobs, riding around in "brand-new" used cars, wearing flashy clothes and boasting of their freedom from the undeniable tyranny of books and the classroom.

That isn't the case any more. Those hand-work jobs the drop-out could always find years ago no longer exist. What remains for unskilled labor is low paid and hard to find. In fact, a high school diploma alone is no guarantee of a good job, either.

That is one reason for a high percentage of young people going on to two-year, four-year and graduate schools. It is the reason for the explosion in the vocational-technical high school field, for their graduates are highly skilled if not highly educated. And in today's craftsman-short job market, that may be worth more than the average degree (just ask your plumber.)

For those youngsters who graduated this weekend, the world and its mysteries and challenges lies ahead. It is an exciting time, because the future is open and there are no limits to which direction a person can choose.

That choice is an important one, but we suggest that the stars of this weekend's big show already made the most crucial one — they stayed in school and got that diploma. Whatever else happens in their lives, we're sure they'll never be sorry they made that decision.

Perils to peace

WASHINGTON — There is a rising tide or weary, wishful, let's-get-away-from-it-all isolationism which is headed toward stalling and stunting the impetus of peace-building which has been steadily coming into view in the past few years.

All the principal powers — the United States, Russia, China, Japan, West Germany and Western Europe as a whole — have been gingerly laying the building blocks of a more stable world. But the best opportunities to go forward will be lost if President Nixon and Congress do not, for whatever reason, do their part.

In one of his rare public speeches, Dr. Henry Kissinger focused a shaft of light on this danger. He said:

"In coming to a recognition of our limits, we have achieved one of the definitions of maturity. But the danger is that we will learn that lesson too well — that instead of a mature recognition that we cannot do everything, we will fall into the dangerous and destructive illusion that we cannot do anything."

Obviously we can't be the world's lone policeman, but one thing is sure — we can't stop the world and get off. A central lesson from Vietnam seems to me to be this:

- 1 — The United States cannot keep the peace without the help of others.
- 2 — Others cannot keep the peace without the help of the United States.

This is why, with the world in a delicate balance between the prospects of peace and the dangers of war, our behavior as a nation and as a people can be a crucial factor.

Peril of isolationism

There is today an overhanging peril to everything which must be done soon to build on what has been so well accomplished already — the substance of detente with the Soviet Union, vastly improved relations between Washington and Peking, Bonn and Moscow cooperation, headway on nuclear arms control, no serious military confrontation between the big powers.

A peril to going forward will mount if those prevail who believe that America can remain at peace without joining with others to keep the peace.

There will be no further nuclear arms agreement with the Soviet Union if Congress makes negotiation unnecessary by unilateral disarmament.

There will be no mutual and balanced reduction of East-West forces in Central Europe if Congress approves a withdrawal of U.S. troops in advance of negotiation.

There will be no effective deterrent to aggression if the United States does not maintain its military strength.

There will be a worldwide trade war if Congress forces the United States to abandon the liberal trade policies which have been an incalculable boon to us and the world since 1933.

Nixon must rebuild

President Nixon, who has done so much that is right in his conduct of foreign policy, will have to repair his working relations with Congress if he is not to find his freedom of initiative restricted.

Now is the time for the President to call a cease-fire in his smoldering civil war with Congress. One good way to begin would be for Nixon to let Congress know that he will respect its constitutional right to end the bombing in Southeast Asia rather than try to circumvent it.

After wisely learning that it is not possible for the United States to do everything, the overriding need today is to generate the will to do well the things which are open to us as one of the world's great powers.

A more stable world is in the making. It can be realized in our time if the United States recovers its dynamic resolve that what is necessary is attainable, and does not through weariness, wishfulness, pique or partisanship derail the constructive diplomacy which is already accomplishing so much.

Now is the time to recover our faith and our national self-confidence — and act accordingly.

And yet there is this certainty.
Our chickens will come home to roost.

Kissinger triggered 'plumbers'

WASHINGTON — Foreign policymaker Henry Kissinger led President Nixon to form "the plumbers," the para-police squad that burglarized the offices of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist and engaged in other extra-legal activities.

This is the story former White House aide Charles Colson has given the Watergate prosecutors in private. As Colson related it, Kissinger got the President so "psyched up" over security leaks that he authorized the plumbers to plug the leaks. Afterward, Kissinger tried to run the plumbers squad through his aide David Young, claimed Colson.

Colson described Kissinger as approaching "near hysteria" over the leak of the Pentagon Papers. One reason for his excitement, Colson suggested, was that the chief leaker, Daniel Ellsberg, formerly had worked for Kissinger.

Sources close to Kissinger confirmed he had been alarmed over the Pentagon Papers leak, which he feared could have "disastrous consequences." No doubt Kissinger told the President of his concern, said these sources.

They denied, however, that Kissinger had anything to do with the formation or operation of the plumbers. The squad was formed, they recall, while Kissinger was on his secret mission to Peking. Young joined the squad and came under White House aide John Ehrlichman's control while Kissinger was away, insist these sources.

Kissinger has searched his logs, they say, to check whether he had any contact with Young after his former aide became a plumber. After checking both his logs and his memory, Kissinger is quite sure he never visited or spoke with Young after the plumbers went into business.

Washington whirl

Busing Generals: For years Air Force Generals from Bolling Air Force Base have hopped aboard an elegantly appointed ship each morning for a ride down the Potomac to the Pentagon. Last January, to the generals'

Jim Bishop

Big John — the wheelman

My father should have been buried in an automobile. No man appreciated a car more than John M. Bishop. In my family, you are a member of the dummy generation unless you can remember when Big John bought his first Hupmobile.

It was a deep green which, under certain conditions, looked black. Also, it had a rumble seat. He bought it first, learned to drive later. When he got in it — at 254 lbs. — he looked like an anchovy in a can. He put it in low gear, dropped his police lieutenant's foot on the accelerator and was stunted to find himself flying up Garfield Avenue at 15 m.p.h.

On the green

He turned at Wegman Parkway. I watched the steep lawn on the far side of the street come up to the window and muttered: "For God's sake!" He had turned the wheel one quarter, and then froze. We tilted on the lawn and went back across the street to crease the other side.

He was a most forgiving man when he did anything wrong. When we sinned, he yelled "To the wall!" My kid brother Johnny was in the Coast Guard at the time and Big John said: "I'll drive you back to New London." Johnny said: "It's 220 miles; don't you think you ought to learn how—" "I can drive," my father snarled.

He got to 125th Street and Lenox Avenue in New York and had no notion what the car was doing there. A fat Irish cop in a booth swung the light red and Big John went through it like Patton in a tank. A whistle blew. The car pulled to the curb. My father walked back to the booth, and gave the cop a quick flash at his gold shield.

"How long you been doin' traffic duty, officer?" The policeman said. "Seventeen years . . . Lieutenant." "How'd you like to pound a beat in Tottenville?" "Gee, Lieutenant, you wouldn't do that, would ya?" "The law says," my father explained, "that you cannot go from green to orange to red if a vehicle is within 50 feet of an intersection."

"Right, sir." "I was within 50 feet." "It will never happen again, sir." Big John burst mortification, we informed them that beneath all the fine red carpeting, their daily ferry boat was falling apart. The ship, we wrote, required $26,000 in repairs. The generals apparently got the message. Bolling has discontinued the boat service, and now the generals either drive themselves to work or—believe it or not—take an Air Force bus.

Military concerns: Now that the troops are home from Vietnam, the brass hats have turned their attention to lesser matters. For example, Maj. Gen. Warren K. Bennett, the Third Army's chief of staff, lectured his fellow officers at a recent staff conference on the virtues of a V-neck undershirt as opposed to Army-issued O-necks. The general also issued a memorandum to the troops at Ft. McPherson, Ga., advising them of the necessity to keep hedges trimmed, lawns mowed and trees pruned.

Get Breggin: The nation's most outspoken foe of psychosurgery, psychiatrist Peter Breggin, has been warned that several ex-convicts are out to "get" him. Apparently, they believe in the psychosurgery he opposes to probe the brain and modify violent behavior. Breggin calls this "partial murder" because it blunts the patients' personality. The warning that ex-inmates might seek reprisals against him, Breggin says, came from California psychosurgeon Hunter Brown, who claims to have performed 300 behavioral operations. Breggin quotes Brown as telling him: "I am in close correspondence with some prisoners at San Quentin, sixty of whom wish to have psychiatric surgery. The word has gotten around that the first man who is paroled — and this is a real risk, Peter, seriously — the word is to 'get Breggin.' This is the truth and I can document it." At least three members of Congress — Sen. Glenn Beall, R-Md., Sen. James Buckley, C.N.Y., and Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif. — have written to California Attorney General Evelle Young expressing concern over the alleged threats.

into laughter. "I'm not in your department," he said. "I'm a loopy from Jersey." The policeman steamed. He said some bad words, closing with ". . . and get the hell out of here before I lose my temper."

They got to New London, Connecticut. The Hup was going up Main Street. "We just passed the base," Johnny said. "Where?" my father said. "Back there," Johnny said. A policeman was out in the middle of the main street, directing traffic.

He was fascinated watching my father move that Hupmobile across the street and back, across the street and back — never able to make the turn. The cop walked up to the car. Dad stopped it. He was peering.

The cop leaned on the windowsill, "what you need," the policeman said, flapping his arms, "is a great big field." All of his cars had to have four ingredients, in order of importance: Gasoline, air in the tires, a four-oz. bottle of booze in the glove compartment, and my mother.

Mother was important for walking on when he made a mistake. If, while he was driving, a car emerged from a side street, the brakes would go on. Dad would jam his head against the roof, and shout: "For God's sake Jenny, can't you see that car? Why didn't you tell me? We could have been killed."

A half mile later: "John, there's a car coming out four blocks ahead of us." Sarcastically: "Of course there is. Do you think I'm blind?"

The small booze was seldom touched. It was the lifeboat. In case of a wreck, a heart attack, an onslaught of leprosy, galloping consumption or the wheezes, the panacea was in the glove compartment. Mom called it "the curse of the devil," displaying a complete lack of comprehension.

He washed his own car. He waxed it. The oil was drained and changed every 990 miles. He dusted the engine head once a week. No oil drippings were permitted on the garage floor.

When my father died, I should have put him in a car. Not forgetting, of course, the little lifeboat in the glove compartment. . .

Death penalty bill passage expected

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Supporters are confident of final passage this week of a bill that would bring back the death penalty in Pennsylvania.

A final vote in the House could come as early as Tuesday. Any attempts to amend the measure should be made today.

Meanwhile, the budget battle is likely to go behind closed doors this week as a House-Senate Conference Committee begins wrestling with the Republican and Democrat versions of the bill.

House Republicans passed a $3.5 billion spending bill early last month and tied it to a $372 million tax relief plan that includes an automatic $2,000 exemption from the state income tax for all workers.

The Democrat-controlled Senate restored most of the cuts last week to bring the budget in line with Gov. Milton J. Shapp's request. Shapp has proposed a $127 million tax cut.

"I'm positive we won't concur with the changes," said House Speaker Kenneth Lee, R-Sullivan. "I would assume a conference committee would hold at least a preliminary meeting this week."

The deadline for assignment is June 30, the last day of this fiscal year.

Rep. Joseph Zord, R-Allegheny, chief sponsor of the death penalty bill, said he would press for final passage this week.

"There's no reason for delay," Zord said. "I'm going to call it up. The only argument opponents can give is that they don't want the death penalty."

CENTO talks begin

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — The 20th meeting of the Central Treaty Organization (CENTO) opened Sunday with U.S. Secretary of State William Rogers stressing the need for negotiation rather than confrontation to achieve peace.

"It is true that the world into which CENTO was born differs substantially from the world of today," Rogers said. "The phrase that dominated our talks in the 1950s was the 'cold war.'"

"The policy which guides us today is to substitute 'negotiation' for 'confrontation' and to achieve a generation of peace."

The two-day meeting of CENTO is being attended by the foreign ministers of the member countries, Britain, Pakistan, Turkey and Iran. The United States attends as an observer nation.

HARRISBURG — Republicans backing legislation to make the Pennsylvania Attorney General's office an elective post were seething last week when Atty. Gen. Israel Packel's office called a key feature of a GOP tax relief bill unconstitutional.

The announcement came as the House of Representatives was settling down for a spirited partisan fight over the tax plan, and while it didn't have any official weight, the justice department position gave a touch of authority to House Democrats opposing the Republican move.

Clearly, the justice department — part of the Democratic administration of Gov. Shapp — was being political: House Democrats lacked the votes to stop the Republican legislation (which passed 108-86 on a party line vote). So they did the next best thing and made the tax bill look as bad as possible.

This is where Packel's office came in.

"The Governor tells him what opinion he wants and he writes it," fumed one Republican House member, Rep. Roy W. Wilt of Mercer County. Conceding there was constitutional question about the GOP bill, Wilt contended nonetheless that Republicans were on solid grounds with it. The informal opinion from Packel's office was "one of the disadvantages of having an attorney general appointed by the Governor," Wilt said.

Several bills have been introduced this legislative term to convert the attorney general from a politically appointed to an elected official, and the sponsor of one of them said after the justice announcement last week that too often the attorney general becomes "a lackey of the governor."

Sen. R. Budd Dyer believes an elected attorney general could be stronger and more independent than an appointed one. Dwyer, a Crawford County Republican, points to Packel's predecessor, J. Shane Creamer, as an example of what he dislikes.

Creamer, Dwyer says, took two opposite positions when Gov. Shapp pushed for Pennsylvania's first income tax in 1971: Creamer first said the governor's tax was unconstitutional but reversed this at Shapp's order and said it was constitutional. Eventually the courts threw the tax down as unconstitutional.

Dwyer says this is a good example of a governor's power over an attorney general and is also a good reason why attorneys general should be elected.

Legislators say Packel has taken several positions too

U.N. resumes Mideast debate

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The Security Council debate on the Middle East resumes today, but attention is focused on summit talks between President Nixon and Soviet Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev a week later.

Diplomats at the United Nations believe the Nixon-Brezhnev talks may hold the key to a solution to the Middle East problem, or at least to a resumption of U.N. peace efforts.

The Security Council debate, requested by Egypt, opened last Wednesday, but in three days of talks it did not offer even a trace of a new approach to the Middle East stalemate.

Nearly all the speakers warned that inactivity by the Security Council would leave a vacuum which could be filled by new fighting at any time.

Diplomats here, however, believe that the United States and the Soviet Union, in their roles as the major suppliers of arms to Israel and the Arabs, alone have the influence to bring the two sides in the Middle East conflict to the bargaining table.

U.S. Ambassador John Scali said Friday that the future of Middle East peace depends on U.S.-Soviet cooperation. But Scali also stressed the role of the United Nations in any settlement.

The Security Council debate is expected to be recessed by Thursday and to remain in recess during Brezhnev's visit to Washington.

The first speaker in today's debate is scheduled to be Kenneth D. Jamieson, Britain's deputy permanent representative.

Local Legion auxiliary reviews past 50 years

EAST STROUDSBURG — Drawing on the storehouse of memories of five charter members of the American Legion Auxiliary Unit 346, East Stroudsburg, heard of the many past triumphs and funny happenings of the past 50 years at the anniversary dinner held at the post home.

Bess Marek presented gifts to the charter members: Hazel Achterman, Kate Jones, Frances Ransberger, Mary Altomese and Betty Smith.

Mrs. Ransberger read the article from the local newspaper on the organization 50 years ago. Mrs. Achterman also told of many of her experiences as each of the other charter members recalled their own special memories of the early years.

Other members joined in reminiscences before the business meeting was called to order by Phoebe Megargle. There were 11 past presidents there.

Americanism medals were awarded to Rochell Hartman of East Stroudsburg High School, Patty Fisher of Stroudsburg High School and Elizabeth Bensinger of Notre Dame High School.

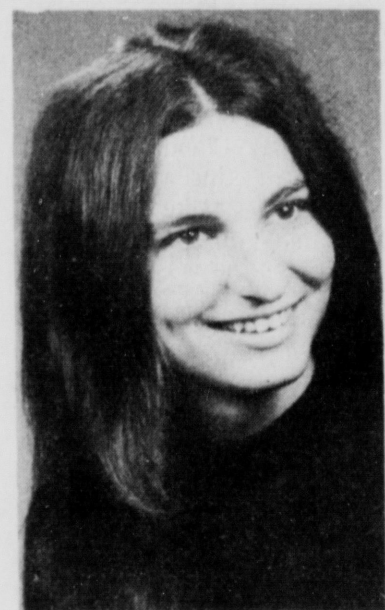

Awards were also presented to Joyce Reiserwitz and Mary Altomese.

Mrs. Megargle was re-elected as president for the coming year. Other officers elected were Betty Strunk, vice president; Kathy Heffer, second vice president; Bertha Taffinger, secretary; Gertrude Bliz, treasurer; Bertha Becker, chaplain; Stella Plattenburg, historian; Helen Counterman and Wileta Strunk, sergeants at arms.

The auxiliary now has 223 members.

Announcement was made of the Four-County Council meeting to be held June 30 at 10 a.m. at the Barrett Am-balance Building in Canadensis. Members were asked to bring items for the flea market to be held by the East Stroudsburg Business Men on the business streets of the borough June 28, 29 and 30 from 9 a.m. to dusk.

She will continue her education at Southern Seminary.

Shrimp scampi

By BARBARA GIBBONS
Here's how to turn on the flavor of shrimp... spike it with a bit of sherry!

A hearty slug of sherry wine works wonders with the flavor of Shrimp Scampi, the Italian dish much favored by Americans.

In fact, Shrimp Scampi is really an American invention of sorts. The Italian word "scampi" refers to a different shellfish, a prawn, which Italians serve broiled in lots of oil, garlic and seasonings. Scampi isn't available here, so we Americans have adopted the recipe to suit our native shrimp. The results are flavorful, but often fattening!

In our recipe we've cut way back on the oil, and added a quick sherry sauce instead. The alcohol calories evaporate in the cooking, so our Sherry Shrimp Scampi is much slimmer.

To serve this dish in fancy company dress, you'll want to "butterfly" the shrimp. To do this, you remove the shell, except for the tail. Use a sharp-pointed knife to devein the shrimp, then slit the shrimp lengthwise, just up to the tail. The shrimp meat will fan out, like a pair of "butterfly wings."

Lighter with wine

- Sherry Shrimp Scampi
- 2 pound large raw shrimp-in-the-shell
 - 2 tablespoons olive oil
 - 4 cloves of garlic, minced
 - ½ teaspoon oregano or mixed Italian seasoning
 - 1 paprika
 - ½ cup water
 - 1 teaspoon arrowroot or cornstarch
 - 3 tablespoons lemon juice
 - 3 tablespoons sherry wine
 - 1 teaspoon parsley flakes
 - 1 chicken bouillon cube

Carefully shell and "butterfly" the raw shrimp.

Place the shrimp in a shallow broil-proof baking dish. Combine olive oil, garlic and oregano and toss lightly with shrimp to coat evenly. Sprinkle with paprika. Broil shrimp 4 to 5 minutes, until just tender.

Teams twirl to national competition

STROUDSBURG — Competing majorette students of Miss Shirley's Studio of Dance, Stroudsburg have again won in the Pennsylvania State and Open Championship and will be competing on the national level June 23 in Atlantic City.

The state competition was held this month at the Allentown College of St. Frances DeSales, Center Valley.

Capturing state championships were teams in three divisions of Dance Twirl teams: the Red Eez in the novice juvenile; the S.J.'s in the novice junior and the Mountinettes in the advanced senior division.

Individual championship titles in solo competition were Dianne Brown one baton and two baton; Janet Coco, one baton and flag; Andrea Silock, two baton.

Members of the state championship teams are:

The Red-Eez: Paula Bartron, Tricia Borger, Paula Briganti, Kathy Carson, Tammy Frailey, Sheryl Heckman, Anne Kristof, Karla Sue Lawler and Trina Mansfield.

The S.J.'s: Debbie Alexander, Carol Manson, Cheryl Papillion, Susan Sheeley, Andrea Silock, Donna Dmish and Elaine Williamson.

The Mountinettes: Wendy Baabe, Dianne Brown, Sara Frailey, Perry Briganti, Sandy DeHaven, Lynne Manson and Elaine Williamson.

The twirling groups will perform their championship routines as part of the annual dance review of the studio to be held at Stroudsburg High School auditorium on June 17 at 2 p.m.

The dance review is under the direction of Mrs. Briganti a national baton Twirling Teacher and judge, who also choreographed the routines.

Chestnuthill ordinance changes up in air

By MAUREEN RUFE
Pocono Record Reporter
BRODHEADSVILLE — For the second month in a row the Chestnuthill Township Supervisors decided to take any action on several proposed amendments to the municipality's subdivision ordinance.

The delay, according to residents and officials who attended the supervisors' regular meeting last week, is said to be caused for two reasons.

First, Supervisor Chairman Albert Frantz, who reportedly has strong feelings about a part of the ordinance dealing with minor transfers of land among family members, was not able to attend the last two regular township meetings.

Second, the Chestnuthill planning commission has called for a joint session with the supervisors to discuss several aspects of planning at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at their regular closed-meeting session. It is felt that the amendments will be thoroughly explained at that time.

The supervisors have a special meeting set for June 19 to accept bids on a new township truck and roller and it is possible that they may decide to act on the subdivision amendments at that time. If not, no action is expected until the board's July 3 meeting.

The supervisors also considered adopting a burning ordinance for the township. Solicitor Lester Brown supplied the board with photocopies of one sample ordinance which would prohibit burning to certain hours and another which would prohibit burning to several types of things in closed containers.

The officials agreed to review the proposals this month and make some formal recommendations at their next meeting. It was stressed that officials of the West End Fire Company would be consulted before any final version was adopted.

One regular attendee at the township meetings called the supervisors' attention to the new state requirement that would force all developers and residents who disturb soil to secure an erosion permit.

He volunteered to have 400 West End residents at the Pleasant Valley High School if the township would get Department of Environmental Resources' officials to explain this and some of the other recent decisions the DER has made.

Calling the erosion permit requirement silly and virtually unenforceable because of a lack of manpower in the DER, the local resident said it was outrageous that a homeowner would have to pay $200 for an erosion permit so he could build his house.

The resident called on the supervisors to provide explanatory information for residents on the DER rulings as well as other pertinent information, but the board took no official action on the suggestion.

The supervisors officially decided to spend their revenue sharing money on township roads; the decision will be advertised this month.

Under old business, a resident asked why the supervisors had never held the joint meeting proposed earlier with Pleasant Valley School Board members to discuss installing flashing school lights in the township.

Supervisor Claude Possinger said the meeting was not held because he talked to John Mills, superintendent of the school, and he was told there was a new state law enacted which regulates the installation of the lights.

The resident asked that the supervisors look into the matter further so that the lights could be installed over the summer. Brown said he would check into the matter this month.

The same resident called attention to a reportedly dangerous situation that exists on a township road off

Rte. 209 in Brodheadsville near the Lehigh Valley Sand and Gravel pit.

She contended that the road is in a dangerous condition because of a build-up of sand and debris and she suggested that the supervisors ask the quarry to find an alternative method of transporting sand and gravel across the township road.

She also related that on one occasion last week, sand or gravel was being loaded into trucks in the middle of the road with no flagman in attendance and no warning sign mounted beyond a curve in the road to let motorists know they might have to stop quickly.

The supervisors indicated they had asked the quarry owner to clean up the road repeatedly. Possinger said he would talk to the owner about the situation on Wednesday morning.

The board officially approved a plot plan belonging to Alpha Acres. Only one and a half lots fall into Chestnuthill Township, while the rest lay in Jackson.

Community Chest plans for '74

BUCK HILL FALLS — Faced with the task of raising $158,774 to support the 10 member agencies of the Monroe County Community Chest, G. Scott Smith, chairman of the 1973-74 campaign has already set up a tentative calendar and captains of the various divisions.

He is being assisted by William P. Douglass as vice chairman. Walter Adelman, chairman of last year's campaign when $174,466 was subscribed, reviewed the campaign at a meeting held at The Inn at Buck Hill Falls.

Present were campaign leaders who aided in the selection of the Advance Gift Committee, which under Adelman's chairmanship will have its first meeting on June 27.

Other appointments announced by Smith included: industrial division, with a meeting scheduled for July 11: H. Sogi Soder and Joseph Fleming.

Trade: John Moraski, Stroudsburg; Richard Dreas, East Stroudsburg.

Professional: Mrs. Donald Stone, Stroudsburg; Jeffrey Weichel, East Stroudsburg; physicians, Mrs. John Rumsey.

Public Service: Stephen Erle, Stroudsburg; Thomas Bordigan, East Stroudsburg; Thomas Joyce, government.

John Parker is heading the clubs and organization division. Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg, and the county house-to-house campaign will be conducted by letters except for Delaware Water Gap with Mrs. Michael Miller as captain; Eldred Twp. where Mrs. Adan Bohner will serve; and Barret Twp. still to be appointed.

Clifford Gillam and William Lyon are in charge at Buck

Hill and William Malleson Jr. of Skytop Lodge and Club. Other resorts will be solicited during the season by Smith and Adelman.

Smith and his co-chairman, Douglass, will arrange for solicitation of the schools and college, and Ethel West, executive director of the Chest will contact Tobyhanna Army Depot as well as arranging letter gifts and special gifts.

All material will be delivered to the divisions on Sept. 5 with report breakfasts each Wednesday through September until the close of the campaign on Oct. 17.

In an analysis of the results of the 1972-73 campaign, Adelman listed the following totals: Resorts, $5,192.20; industrial, $32,042.86; trade, $28,099.65; professional, $11,073.84; schools, $5,882.26; public service, $13,330.25; organizations and clubs, $2,168.35; Stroudsburg residential, $3,739.25; East Stroudsburg residential, $2,008.50; county, $15,921.72; Barrett Community, $2,934.05; Buck Hill and Skytop $19,490; and Tobyhanna Army Depot, $5,583.09.

The total amount subscribed was $147,466.02 compared to a total of $136,674.68 of the previous year's campaign.

Campaign leaders and their husbands or wives were the guests of The Inn at Buck Hill Falls.

CERVICAL SPASM

By Dr. Thomas F. Snyder

Cervical Spasm is a very painful condition of the neck in which there is a spasm of the muscles. This spasm makes movement of the neck very difficult, if not impossible. The pain makes it unpleasant. Generally the neck cannot be moved without moving the body.

The position of the head in Cervical Spasm will vary, depends upon which muscles are in spasm. It is known that the action of muscles is controlled by nerves. A muscle contract when nerve impulses pass into the muscles, and the greater the number of impulses passing into the muscle, in quick succession, the greater the degree of contraction of that muscle. Pressure on the nerves will cause a greater muscle contraction. This pressure arises from the spinal column. Chiropractic has had excellent response in Cervical Spasm which makes it advisable to consult a Chiropractor when suffering from this affliction.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Your Horoscope

Frances Drake

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — There's an advantage in every disadvantage. YOU will be the determining factor — and a substantial winner, or needless loser. Keep your wits about you.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Generally auspicious, but your day won't run on its own steam. You will be the pilot, and probably the pivot for those with whom you come in contact.

May 22 to June (Gemini) — Handle routine before attempting the new or extracurricular. Gains indicated in advertising, promotion, written matters and educational pursuits.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Don't overplay your hand, but stay in there pitching with the best of them. The right balance and careful decisions can mean top results soon.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Do not become involved in matters which do not really concern you, but DO take an interest in new trends within your own field.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Mixed influences. Special care needed in experimentation, hastily contrived messages and writings; also transportation.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — You may run into snags or obstacles but you can handle them well. Pep up an old idea, keep your vision broad. Think over past experiences and profit by them.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Avoid a present tendency toward procrastination, and do not overcrowd your schedule. Be realistic in demands and do not expect the unreasonable.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Planets indicate some complications not easily unravelled. Yet, by diligent process, you will be able to rack up more than just fair results.

December 22 to Jan 20 (Capricorn) — Do not become discouraged if a pet project hasn't quite worked out — especially if you KNOW it was worth the effort. Give it another chance.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Not much planetary help here but you can, nevertheless, keep this day out of the mediocre class if you stress your innate enthusiasm and stick-to-itiveness.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Look to revitalized ambition and lofty inspiration to help you put over most ideas and plans. A good day, under Neptune's generous influence.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a brilliant mind, a dynamic personality and a wealth of talents.

Opening lead — five of clubs. Artificial bids can be extremely valuable when the right hand comes along, but, as with many so-called panaceas, they are not always an undiluted success.

Consider this deal from the U.S.-France match in 1971 which dramatizes the enormous effect that intervention or non-intervention may have on the accuracy of a constructive auction.

At the first table, with Stoppa and Roudinesco North-South for France, the bidding went as shown. Two diamonds was an artificial game-forcing bid, and two hearts was an artificial response denying an ace.

From then on, the bidding was natural — but ineffective. From South's standpoint, his partner's three spade bid might have been based on some such hand as:

♠ J98754 ♥ 7 ♦ 952 ♣ J64.

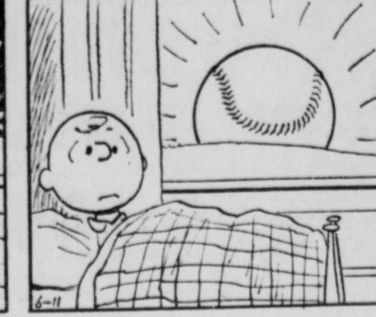

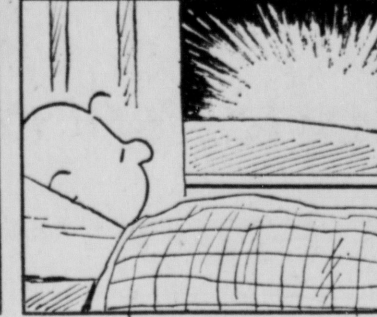

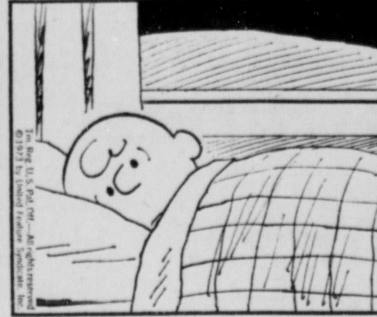

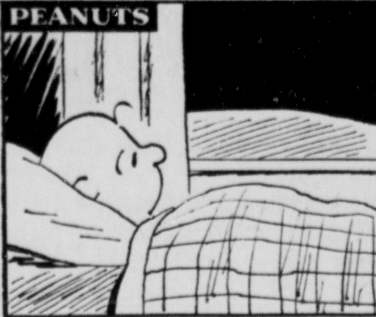

So South bid only four hearts, allowing for this dread possibility, and North, though aware that he had somewhat greater values than his previous bids had shown, elected to play safe and pass. There was nothing to the play and North easily made six.

At the second table, with Jacoby and Wolff North-South for the U.S., the bidding went in this sprightly fashion:

East South West North
Pass 1♣ Pass 1♠
Pass 1♥ Pass 3♣
5♣ 6♥

The club bid was artificial, showing at least 17 high-card points. When West chimed in with three clubs, Jacoby's double was also artificial, showing at least 7 points.

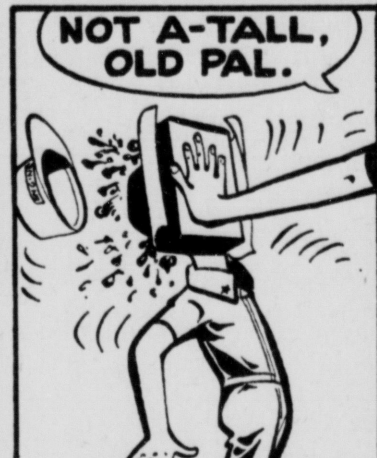

Over East's jump to five clubs, it was relatively easy for Wolff to undertake the heart slam at once. With both opponents leaping like crazy in clubs, he did not find it difficult to conclude that his partner's high-card strength was likely to lie in either spades or diamonds, which was exactly where he needed help. So Wolff bid six and so gained 750 points on the hand.

Hamilton solicitor outlines subdivision enforcement

SCIOTA — A new subdivision enforcement procedure designed by Solicitor Samuel Newman was outlined recently at a special meeting of the Hamilton Township Planning Commission.

Newman reported that Edward Hess, Associates has been retained by the township to receive regular reports from the county assessor of all deeds transferred in Hamilton Township.

Hess Engineer John Dennis will then review the deeds, separating those which fall into the subdivision category.

The names of apparent violators who did not submit the appropriate plans for their subdivisions will be brought to the attention of the commission at a regular meeting.

Letter warning

The reported violators will receive a form letter from the township indicating that a conviction of a violation in the subdivision ordinance is a misdemeanor, which can carry a $100 fine per lot, parcel or dwelling for each day the violation exists.

The letter will also notify the apparent violator that he should submit the required plans on or before the planners' next meeting, when the commission will decide if an actual violation has taken place and, if so, what steps will be needed to correct it.

In their regular township meeting in May, the Hamilton Township Supervisors formally authorized Newman to take any steps necessary to successfully enforce the Hamilton subdivision ordinance.

In another action, the planners granted a variance to resident Charles G. LaBadie who appeared before the board Tuesday night, saying he was in possible violation of the mobile home park section of the Hamilton subdivision code.

Didn't know

He explained he never realized he was in violation of the code until a neighbor told him he should check with the commission regarding his son's mobile home, which was moved adjacent to LaBadie's own mobile home on a one-acre lot.

According to Planning Secretary Elmer Kiefer, the situation seemed to be an honest error from an honest resident and a variance was granted by the board on the basis of hardship.

According to the Hamilton ordinance, the two mobile homes would technically constitute a mobile home park and would have to be located on at least 10 acres of land.

In explaining the decision Kiefer said it was clear to everyone that this was not or would never be a true mobile home park in any sense of the word.

Plans okayed

In other actions, the planners agreed to approve preliminary plans on one subdivision and two mobile home parks and indicated final approval would be granted on condition that the developers meet the recommendations of the board's engineering consultants from PennEast Corp.

The subdivision, presented for approval by John Dennis, is owned and developed by resident Russell Bittenbender.

The Hill Top and the Deer Run mobile home parks received preliminary approval, although it was suggested that the developer of the two properties submit proof that the parks had the approval of the Department of Environmental Resources.

The planner's consultant also asked the developer to describe what kind of fencing would be built in the park's required buffer strips. It was noted that the address of the developer should appear on the plans.

The PennEast firm also took exception to a severe grade on Pine Drive in the Hill Top park and asked that it be changed.

The planners specified that roads in the parks would have to conform to the subdivision's definition for minor streets.

A bill for $400 was received from the PennEast Corp. for services rendered last month. Kiefer said it would be forwarded to the supervisors for payment at their meeting next week.

Planner Bill Weber, although unable to attend the session because of illness, sent a preamble to the commission which will be used to introduce the board's planning and zoning questionnaire, to be submitted to local residents in the near future.

Obviously pleased with the short opening, Kiefer described the preamble as "one of those dandy ordinary things that everybody can understand — a real little gem."

Moravian grad

BETHLEHEM — Ruth Ann Gorse, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George Gorse of Stroudsburg, R.D. 5, will receive her diploma at commencement exercises at Moravian Academy on Saturday. Moravian Academy is a private, coeducational school for grades pre-kindergarten through 12, Bethlehem.

Cadet Scout troop gives awards

STROUDSBURG — Cadet Girl Scout Troop 352 of Stroudsburg recently held its annual Court of Awards ceremony, at which 36 girls received badges they earned during the year.

Five girls were advanced to the rank of First Class Scout, the highest rank in Girl Scouting. They were Kathy Albert, Cindy Fetherman, Debbie Hankins, Debbie Heeter and Jenny Sheley.

After the candlelight ceremony, Troop Leader Mrs. Maryanne Heeter showed films of the troop's March trip to Williamsburg, Va. Mrs. Heeter thanked all of the parents who had supported the troop during the year, especially her assistants, Mrs. Dorothy Albert, Miss Linda Balmoos, Mrs. Barbara Fetherman and Mrs. Kleinle.

New program approved

EAST STROUDSBURG — The first bachelor of science degree program in a non-education major has been approved at East Stroudsburg State College.

According to Dr. William J. Hein, vice president for academic affairs, a b.s. degree in biology with a specialty in laboratory medicine has been added to the college's curriculum.

This curriculum is designed to prepare students for a wide variety of careers in the paramedical and medical sciences. Serving as program director will be Dr. Henry N. Fremont, professor of biology.

Students graduating from this program will be eligible to take the National Licensing Examination for certification as medical technologists. The curriculum, laboratory oriented, also prepares students for roles as research technicians and research associates.

The curriculum has been designed to offer three years of academic coursework on campus and a 12-month internship in an approved hospital laboratory. Dr. Fremont indicated that it might also be possible for selected students to spend several months in a hospital laboratory located in a tropical country.

Students enrolled in the bachelor of science degree program in biology may also use this curriculum as pre-professional training for medical, veterinary or dental schools.

The first full class to be accepted to the program will be in September, 1974. However, a number of students now in the bachelor of arts degree program in biology have transferred to this program. Because of the transfer possibility, it is expected that students may graduate in this program within two years.

ECHOS conducts test run

STROUDSBURG — Emergency Communications Help and Organized Search (ECHOS), a citizen radio club in the Stroudsburg area, conducted a drill Sunday to test their emergency communication capability.

The object of the drill was to speedily get in touch with Doug Long, operator of a Volkswagen, who was assigned to drive around Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg and the Stroud Township area.

A total of 16 ECHOS club members with radio units in their vehicles were able to locate Long in 59 minutes.

The ECHOS are affiliated with Civil Defense authorities and local police to provide communication assistance during an emergency. Some members are also qualified to give first aid.

The next regular meeting of the club will be 7 p.m. Thursday in the Civil Defense Room of the Monroe County Courthouse.

Miss Miller garners scholarship

EAST STROUDSBURG — Julia I. Miller of Stroudsburg R. D. 1, has been named the recipient of the 1973 Hughes Foundation Scholarship Award.

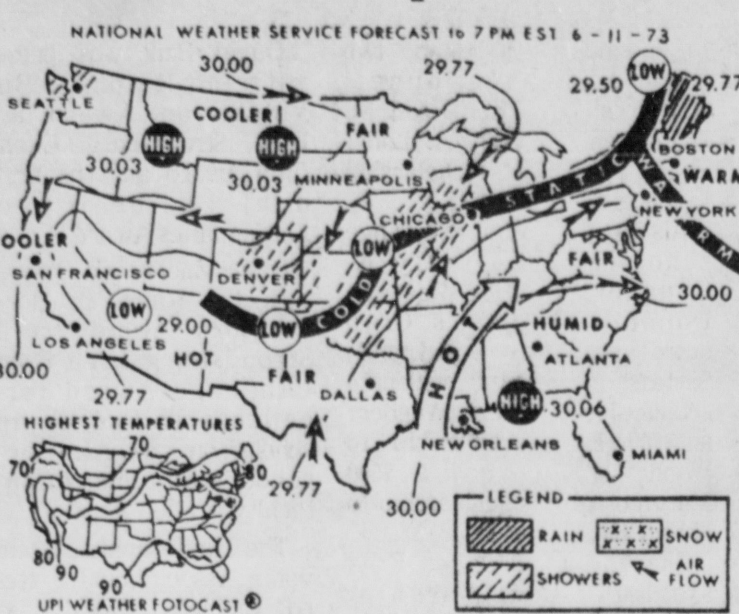

Miss Miller graduated this year from Stroudsburg Area School District and will become a freshman this fall at East Stroudsburg State College as a sociology major in the School of Arts and Sciences.

The award, which has a $250 annual renewal for the three additional years, is awarded annually to a member of the high school graduating class of Monroe County who plans to attend East Stroudsburg State College.

The recipient is chosen on the basis of demonstrated academic achievement.

While a student at Stroudsburg High School, Miss Miller has been a member of the National Honor Society and the school newspaper staff.

Q. I think I have a stumper for you. I've advertised in your newspaper and others to find someone who cleans fireplace chimneys. Not one response. It seems this is a lost art, although I'm sure many residents would be interested in finding someone to do this work.

R.D., Stroudsburg

A. Tried to smoke us, did you? A Monroe County Firemen's Assn. spokesman says local residents wanting their chimneys cleaned should contact their local fire chief. In all probability, he'll gather a few men to do the job. Spokesman didn't mention it, but we think a donation might be in order. Some day they might do more than clean your chimney.

Q. We belong to a non-profit square dancing group. We've had difficulty finding places to hold our dances, particularly school gyms. Why are public school administrators so reluctant to allow non-profit organizations of taxpaying, responsible citizens to use their facilities?

L.D., East Stroudsburg

A. Your organization. Administrators say they welcome the use of school facilities by the community — as long as the school board approves of the use, is assured it won't hurt the facilities, or supercede their use by students. But square dancing, say local officials, causes expense in electric and janitor fees. They also claim dancers can harm hardwood basketball floors with improper footwear.

Q. Can you tell me where I can go to learn how to knit and crochet?

D.M.C., Effort

A. Right around the corner. Mrs. Paul Anderson of Effort gives lessons in her home. Phone 629-0363 evenings.

Q. In December I made a $30 payment for my account at Grant City. But I never received credit for it, even after several letters and assurances it would be okayed. Who can I write to now?

H.H., Saylorsburg R.D. 1

A. Your pen pal. You won't need to write to us or Grant City again. Your payment was made in Scranton's Viewmont Mall store, according to credit records. The East Stroudsburg credit manager, Robert Taylor, says your account now shows no balance. To double-check, he's asked the Scranton outlet to clear their files too — and phoned you about this information.

Q. I returned satin sheets to Regal Satins Inc. in Longbranch, N.J. in February. I have a receipt card signed by the company president, but I'm still waiting for the $20 they owe me.

240 seniors graduate in two exercises

BRODHEADSVILLE — A total of 240 seniors graduated in two commencement exercises held Sunday at Pleasant Valley High School and East Stroudsburg High School.

With the theme of education and its relevance emphasized by three speakers, 94 members of the Class of 1973 graduated at Pleasant Valley High.

The East Stroudsburg High School commencement saw 146 seniors receive diplomas. Valedictorian David Bzik spoke on "Goals" and Salutatorian Diane Zacher addressed the topic "Values." Senior Class President Michael Booth also made a short speech.

Monroe County Commissioner Arlington Martin, guest speaker for the Pleasant Valley affair, reviewed the history of the district's growth in the 39 years since his graduation from the then Chestnuthill High School.

"Too many young people today grow up without respect for their parents' values," stated the commissioner. He blamed this on young people being required to attain education goals they did not choose themselves.

"Education should be more than just a ticket to a job," said Martin. "Young people should learn the values of self-confidence, integrity, how to work with others, how to analyze problems and sharing God's love with others."

"We should work to change the physical and psychological barriers between the school and community," said Martin, as he called for more student involvement in the workings of their schools, as well as in government and community enterprises.

Both student speakers also emphasized the relevance of modern education. Sherry Kreger saw education as valuable in eliminating apathy and discontent in the world.

"The majority of the people are content to sit back and live a life which consists of a job, sleeping, eating and watching TV... it is only through the concern and efforts of the average citizen, like you or me, that the fog of apathy is lifted," said Miss Kreger.

Burl Pudleiner said education should be centered on the individual and should include more work and social experiences for students through greater community involvement.

"Education is not only found inside the walls of the classroom," said Pudleiner. "It is a day to day experience, initiated before birth and culminating only at death."

Pleasant Valley Principal John Nye and Faculty Scholarship Committee Chairwomen Mrs. Joan Bunnell presented a number of scholarships to graduates.

These included three $500 Jaycees Mary Smale scholarships to Sherry Kreger, Burl Pudleiner and Wanda Kunkle; a $500 Everett-Kunkle scholarship to Susan E. Conklin; and a $250 American Association of University Women scholarship to Leslie J. Murdock.

Also, a $200 Pleasant Valley Education Assn. scholarship to Joanne M. Kleintop; two $150 Athletic Council scholarships to Kathyeen M. Baines and Beverly A. Lohr; and a $100 Jopets scholarship to Margie J. Johnson.

Also, a $150 Mineola Grange scholarship to Betty A. Gougher; a $100 Western Poconos Women's Club scholarship to Sandra J. Serfass; a $100 Student Senate scholarship to Ralph Wunder; a $700 Elks scholarship to Wanda Kunkle; and a $500 March of Dimes scholarship to Sherry Kreger.

The $150 Ronald Lee Fritz Memorial scholarship, established by the 1973 seniors in memory of a deceased classmate, was presented to Betty A. Gougher.

Retiring East Stroudsburg District Superintendent Mrs. Pauline Peterson presented several awards to outstanding seniors at the second graduation. Among these were a Music Club of the Stroudsburgs citation awarded to James Wingerter and a Stroudsburg Kiwanis citation presented to Stanley Schoonover.

David Bzik was presented with the Ralph O. Burris Valedictory Award, a $100 East Stroudsburg Exchange Club Award and the first annual Lester Dimmick Mathematics Award.

Diane Zacher was presented with the Ralph O. Burrows Salutatory Award, the East Stroudsburg High Foreign Language Award for excellence in French and a scholarship awarded by the school's administration and faculty.

The first annual Pennsylvania Association for Retarded Children (PARC) Youth Service Award was presented to Cynthia Powell for outstanding service to handicapped children.

A $1,600 Optimist Club scholarship and $600 Rotary Club scholarship were presented to Marian Sipthoth.

The $25 Ernest Swetline Memorial Award was presented to Sandra Singer. The Health Careers Club Award was presented to Vivian Wolbers. A $250 American Association of University

Women scholarship was presented to Michelle Wilson.

A $100 East Stroudsburg Education Association scholarship was presented to Scott Gilliland. The $500 Thomas L. Waring Memorial Award was presented to Donna Smith. The James S. Bunnell Award was presented to Fred Fritz.

Laurie Randall was awarded a citizenship citation by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Awards for outstanding subject achievement in individual subject areas were presented to Patrick Boushell (English and social studies), Martha Nederostek (general and commercial studies), Bruce Bird (sciences), Fred Shoemaker (industrial arts), Diane Primrose (fine arts), and Larry Zaccaro (activities).

Bruce Bird and Theodore Hall each received a $50 Student Council Leadership Award and April Lockwitch was presented with the Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow Award.

Pleasant Valley graduates went smiling out to meet the world after commencement Sunday. A total of 94 graduated at Pleasant Valley, while 146 garnered diplomas at East Stroudsburg High School.

Porker, pomp, pageantry at historical group's bash

By BOBBY WESTBROOK
Family Fare Editor

STROUDSBURG — The turkey and a lamb joined in the chorus of "Old MacDonald Had a Farm" on cue as about 100 members of the Monroe County Historical Society sat over the remains of a roast pig at the society's annual outing at Quiet Valley Historical Farm Museum Saturday.

The 80-pound pig had been roasting over a pit fire on a spit since 8:30 a.m. and was fork-tender. Its aroma drew the crowd, many of them in costume, who had been touring the museum in small groups, early to the outdoor picnic grounds.

Accompanying the pork were 35 loaves of bread, baked in the outdoor oven that morning from grain grown and milled on the farm, cole slaw sliced on an old-fashioned cabbage grater, as well as baked beans and gingerbread with hand-shelled walnuts which also came out of the capacious oven.

Jesse Flory, president of the society, dressed in overalls with a cornucopia pipe, introduced Rev. Albert Bubel who gave the invocation. Dr. Douglas Danfelt led the singing of old-fashioned songs.

Old-fashioned games directed by Sue Oiler climaxed the gathering with Phillip Martin Jr. and Shimer Kubie most nearly guessing the weight of one of the cows on the hill; Bobby Whittaker the closest to the number of grains of corn in a jar; and the others for the age of the trees represented by three cross-sections.

Two of the same diameter were a catalpa, 49 years old, and a hickory, 149 years old. Beth Martin, Bob Haigh, Doug Kitson, and Jeanette Flagler were the winners.

The outing started early in the afternoon with the dedication of a Historical Society marker at the old Bossard home near Bossardsville.

Assisting in the dedication were Elmer D. Christine, a great-great-great-great-grandson, and his two sons, Christine gave a brief background of Bossert, born in Germany, who came to Philadelphia in 1740, then to the Blue Valley, and then to Hamilton Square where he developed the 300-acre farm.

The farm with its old stone house now consisting of about 100 acres, is the property of Raymond Gumm, whose wife is related to the Bossards. Although the area escaped the earlier Indian raids which hit Shawnee about 1755, it was the setting for serious raids in 1766.

During those raids, three of Bossert's sons were killed as well as a laborer on the farm who is buried on the hill overlooking the marker. His fourth son, Philip, and his daughter both married Kellers so the history of the two families is closely related.

Jesse Flory paid tribute to the site and introduced several Bossert descendants present. They included Grace DePue Lenga of Bushkill and her sister, Helen DePue Van Atta of Franklin, N.J., and a former Bossard neighbor, Minnie Shoemaker Kidney, who recalled her memories of the farm, including stopping to water the horses at the watering trough along the road there.

Bargaining ruling arouses teachers

STROUDSBURG — A somewhat controversial Commonwealth Court ruling on what items teacher unions may negotiate with school boards has aroused opposition from local teacher association officials.

The court ruling handed down last week on a Centre County test case listed 22 items that were "inherent managerial policy" to be decided by a school board and administrators and not through collective bargaining.

The decision, in effect, limits contract talks to wages, benefits and working hours, but refuses teachers the right to bargain over such issues as class size and non-teaching duties.

While the president of the Pennsylvania School Board Assn. (PSBA) called the ruling a "major victory for the general public," the state's largest teacher organization, the Pennsylvania State Education Assn. (PSEA), condemned the decision.

"It certainly was not a good ruling from what I can see," said Douglas Schoonover of the East Stroudsburg Education Assn., a local unit of PSEA. "I hope it is reversed by the state Supreme Court, where PSEA is going to take it."

"I'm a physical education teacher, and this means that theoretically the school administration can arbitrarily assign as many students as it wants to one of my gym classes," Schoonover continued.

"This has a direct affect on the quality of education as well as how much work each teacher is saddled with," he noted. "If I have 95 in my class and another teacher has six, why can't we negotiate what we are paid?"

"That's like asking one factory worker to produce six items and another 30 for the same rate. It won't help the teachers who want to do the job in their area."

"I certainly don't want the teachers to call all the shots or have the boards' hands tied," said Schoonover. "But this ruling gives the administrators too much power. I wouldn't want that kind of power if I was an administrator."

Pocono Mountains Education Assn. negotiator James Morris agreed with Schoonover. "I'm disappointed with the decision. The number of students in a class is directly related to how much work one has to do. I hope PSEA carries it to the Supreme Court," he said.

East Stroudsburg School Board President Irving Sommer supported the decision, saying it did not give the boards any more power than they already had.

"I don't think this will lead to abuse by boards, at least none that I know of," said Sommer. "The public wouldn't stand for abuses if they were to be committed, and we as board members are responsible to the public and our children."

"To have any other ruling would put the school boards in a very awkward situation," Sommer added. "Such things as class sizes have to be left up to administrators for efficiency's sake, and out of responsibility to the public, I'm sure administrators won't let things get out of hand."

The ruling came because of confusion over provisions of Act 195, the 1970 law that gives public employees the right to organize and strike.

The state Labor Relations Board said in 1971 the State College Education Assn. in Centre County could not bargain for the 22 items. The ruling was upheld in Centre County Court last November, but the union appealed.

Youth drowns at dam

BROWNDALE — A 19-year-old Susquehanna County youth drowned Sunday evening at the Sportsman's Dam Pond near here while swimming with friends.

Browndale Fire Chief John Blodnikar said firemen recovered the body of Alan Curtis, 19, of Forest City, from 13 feet of water at 8 p.m. Wayne County Coroner Robert Jennings declared Curtis dead at the scene.

Friends of Curtis said they were swimming in the Clinton Township pond shortly before 7 p.m. when Curtis called out that he was unable to make to the shore. Other youths tried to come to his aid, but he slipped beneath the water and did not resurface.

Board to meet

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Planning and Zoning Commission will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at 612 Monroe St., Stroudsburg.

Accidents over weekend injure 18

HONESDALE — Eighteen persons were injured — though none seriously — in auto accidents over the weekend, police reported.

Honesdale Borough police reported eight persons were injured in a three-car mishap on Rte. 191 at 4:30 p.m. Saturday.

They said Lynn Thompson, 18, Honesdale R.D. 1, was driving south on Rte. 191 at a high rate of speed when he struck a car head-on operated by Frank Boyer, 61, Allentown.

A third car operated by Ceferino Rosario, 47, Bethlehem, traveling north, struck the Boyer car in the rear.

Boyer, his wife Ardella, 56, a son, Keith, 16, Christopher Kunkle, 13, Tyler Hill, and Loyda Rosario, 10, Bethlehem, were all listed in satisfactory condition Sunday night at Wayne Memorial Hospital, Honesdale.

Thompson, and two of his passengers, Daniel Bates, 225 Willow St., Honesdale, and Michael Finan, 18, 143 Young St., Honesdale, were treated and released. All of the injured were taken to the hospital by the Hessling Ambulance Corps, Honesdale.

Police said traffic on Rte. 191 was closed for nearly an hour. The Thompson and Boyer cars were demolished. Charges are pending against Thompson, according to police.

State police at Honesdale reported a motorcycle mishap at 4:50 p.m. Sunday on Legislative Rte. 943 three miles west of Hawley which injured Robert Perkins, 32, Plainfield, N.J.

Perkins was listed in satisfactory condition Sunday night at Wayne Memorial Hospital with a fractured arm, facial lacerations and multiple cuts and bruises. He was taken there by the Hawley Fire Department Ambulance.

Police said he was traveling east and lost control on a curve, going down an embankment.

Five persons, including three from the same family, were injured in a two-car accident on Rte. 209 near the Rte. 33 intersection at 4:45 p.m. Saturday, state police at Stroudsburg reported.

One of the injured, Mrs. Anna Hahn, 46, Orefield R.D. 1, was listed in fair condition at Allentown Hospital with facial and rib fractures and leg cuts.

Blue Ridge Hook and Ladder Co. firemen freed the woman, who was pinned in the wreckage.

Police said Keith Heard, 16, 617 S. Main St., Bangor, pulled out from a private driveway, hitting a car operated by Roy Hahn, 50, who was driving north on Rte. 209.

Hahn, his daughter, Diane, 13, and Kathi Gingerich, 15, Allentown, were all treated at the General Hospital of Monroe County and released.

Heard was treated by his own physician. All of the injured were taken to the hospital by the West End Ambulance Corps.

Two Stroudsburg R.D. 5 girls were treated and released at the General Hospital of Monroe County following a one-car mishap at 12:45 p.m. Saturday on Hamilton Township Rte. 622, state police at Stroudsburg reported.

Police said Sandra DeHaven, 16, was driving south when she lost control on a curve, hitting two trees as the vehicle flipped over on its roof. Nancy Beirth, 15, Stroudsburg R.D. 5, a passenger in the car was also injured.

State police at Stroudsburg reported a motorcycle mishap on Rte. 209, three miles north of Marshalls Creek at 11:15 p.m. Saturday.

They said Leroy Hagerty, Jr., 22, 195 Streamside Ave., East Stroudsburg, skidded on an oil slick, losing control. A passenger, Bonita Saganich, 27, same address, received slight injuries and said she would consult her physician.

Stroud Township police said Kathryn Smith, 16, Stroudsburg R.D. 4 was treated and released at the General Hospital of Monroe County following a two-car accident at the intersection of Rte. 209 and Shafer School House Road.

Panel discussions on home rule and optional plans, labor relations, federal-state revenue sharing and councils of government will take place.

Car burned

SCOTRUN — Twenty men and three fire trucks from the Pocono Township Fire Co. responded to a car fire at 3:15 p.m. Sunday on Interstate 80, two miles west of Scotrun.

Fire Chief William Raish said the 1966 Volkswagen van owned by Robert Kee, Woodbridge, N.J. was gutted by the fire caused in the engine. Firemen were on the scene 45 minutes.

Boroughs association set to convene at Tamiment

BUSHKILL — "The Challenge of Change" is the theme chosen by the Pennsylvania State Association of Boroughs for its 62nd General Assembly opening today at Tamiment in the Poconos.

The association represents mayors, councilmen and other officials in the 966 boroughs of Pennsylvania. More than 2,200 members and guests are expected to attend the four-day conference.

Guest speakers will be Brooke R. Hartman, president of the Pennsylvania Electric Assn. who will speak Tuesday morning on "The Energy Crisis Is Real," and Gov. Milton J. Shapp whose talk is scheduled Wednesday morning. Hartman is vice president of division operations, Pennsylvania Power & Light Co.

Sen. John N. Scales, a member of the Senate's Local Government Committee and former Democratic state chairman, will give the keynote speech Tuesday morning after the welcoming address by Joseph H. Small, president of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce.

Today will be given to registration of delegates and meetings of the borough code, research advisory, solid waste management, borough forms and resolutions and policy committee. The Jimmy Dorsey Orchestra and Helen O'Connell will provide the entertainment tonight.

Gerald R. Shuster of Kittanning, assembly chairman, will preside at the first general session at 9 a.m. Tuesday. Reports will be presented by John L. McManus, of Green Tree, association president; John S. Buchanan of Everett, vice chairman of the county associations committee, and Carl W. Fuehrer of Ephrata, nominating committee chairman. Later, separate meetings will be held by the mayors, councilmen, solicitors and borough secretaries.

The annual awards dinner will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday honoring members for long and faithful service to their boroughs. Three men, all with at least 40 years of service, will receive the President's Award.

They are Paul H. Everhart, treasurer, North York, 44 years; Monroe M. Klopp, secretary, Richland, 41, and Harry W. Kleckner, councilman, mayor, Tamaqua, 40. The Bob Crosby Orchestra and Wess Harrison will provide the entertainment.

Weiskopf continues streak with IVB victory

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Tom Weiskopf, continuing the torrid pace that makes him and others believed he has finally "arrived" in pro golf, won his second straight tournament and third in four weeks Sunday by shooting a one-under-par 71 to capture the $150,000 IVB Philadelphia Golf Classic by four strokes.

Weiskopf's amazing 17th consecutive sub-par round gave him a 72-hole total for 274, 14-under par and the $30,000 victory over sophomore pro Jim Barber, who finished with a birdie flourish and a 278 total.

Weiskopf, winner of the Colonial National in May and the Kemper Open last week, jumped into the lead at the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club after the third round and was never seriously threatened in the final round, even though he had some bogey trouble.

John Miller and Forrest Fezler finished at 279 while Jack Nicklaus, Dave Eichelberger, Gay Brewer and John Schlee were at 280.

One of the best charges against Weiskopf was mounted by Nicklaus, who started the day's play in the hot and humid 90 degree weather at three-under-par, 10 strokes back of the leader.

His five under par 67 tied two others for the low round of the day and Nicklaus said he felt after three-birdies on the front nine that "I had a chance to catch Tom" but then he bogied the 10th.

Weiskopf, who said he does not have "a negative thought in my head now," has attributed his month-long streak to "fantastic putting."

That touch lost him somewhat when he three-putted the second hole for a bogey, birdied the fourth and then three-putted the 6th for another bogey, but got that stroke back with a 25-foot birdie on No. 9.

After making the nine-hole turn at one-under par 35 for the day, Weiskopf added another birdie on the par-five 11th hole, suffered bogeys on the 12th and 15th but then birdied the 17th.

Barber, a 24-year-old from Clearwater, Fla., who has earned only $6,000 in his two years on the tour, was the pacesetter during the first two rounds but ran into bogey-trouble and fell back Saturday.

But he shot a two-under-70, thanks to birdies on the 17th and 18th holes to pick up a check of $17,125, the largest he has seen as a pro.

Weiskopf said he believes he is not playing up to the potential he said he felt he always had.

"I just feel like a completely different person on the golf course," he said.

"I feel as if I have arrived," said the former Ohio State University star who won this tournament in 1971 with the same 14-under par mark.

Weiskopf's 17-under par in winning last week also was a record for the Kemper.

Winner just made his putts count

PHILADELPHIA — Saturday, Tom Weiskopf stayed hot and took the lead in the $150,000 IVB Golf Classic, Sunday, he put the tournament in the bag by the 11th hole.

"Today, I just made the putts when I had to," said Weiskopf Sunday after firing a one-under-par 71 for a total of 274, 14-under-par for the tournament and good enough for the first prize check for $30,000.

"Saturday was the same way. I made bogey on number three today, but came back with birdie on the fourth hole. If I had been in trouble on that hole, you might have seen a different story," he said.

For Weiskopf, a tall, powerful graduate of Ohio State, the check pushed his earnings past the $150,000 mark for the year and was his third win in the past four tournaments.

He'd won the Colonial Invitational finished second behind Jack Nicklaus at the Atlanta Classic and won the Kemper Open last week before the IVB victory. His 71 Sunday gave him 17 successive under-par rounds.

Weiskopf dropped a two-iron tee shot eight feet from the cup on the par-three, 235-yard fourth hole and ran the putt in for birdie to offset a bogey at the par-four, 405-yard second hole.

"I hit a bad approach there, but that putt on four made up for it and more," he said.

After a bogey five on the sixth hole when he three-putted, Weiskopf ran in a 10-footer for birdie on seven, rallied from a tree stymie on eight with a great approach shot and got par and ran in a 25 foot putt on nine for a deuce to make the turn at one-under 35.

"That putt on nine was a tricky one, and it felt good to make it," said Weiskopf, who raised his fist in triumph as the crowd roared when the putt dropped into the cup.

After placing his tee shot behind a tree in the left rough on the par-five, 520-yard eleventh, Weiskopf laid up 60 yards from the green with an iron and then pitched a wedge five feet from the cup, running the putt in for a bird to go 15-under and clinch the win with seven holes yet to play.

He bogeyed 12 when he hit into the right fringe and three-putted and bogeyed the par-four, 420-yard fifteenth when his second shot was strong and rolled into heavy rough off the back of the green. After a ruling, he chipped short and went four feet past with his par attempt before making bogey.

Weiskopf rolled in a five-footer on the par-three, 145-yard sixteenth for par and birdied the par-five, 485-yard seventeenth for his final 71 and 274 total. Weiskopf used 33 putts for his round, with one-putts coming on 4, 7, 8, 9, 11, 14 and 17.

While Weiskopf was making the clutch putts, playing companion Forrest Fezler wasn't. "If I had made any putts at all today, I would have been 11 or 12 under. But the two I hung on the lip on 14 and 15 for birdie were just characteristic of the whole day," he said.

Fezler bogeyed the first three holes by three-putting before rallying in the final 10 holes to finish third behind Weiskopf and "rabbit" Jim Barber, who was second after leading at the halfway point. Fezler and Johnny Miller had 279, good for third place finishes.

Miss Mills wins in LPGA with charge of birdies

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI) — Blue-eyed Mary Mills shot a three under par 70, including four birdies on the back nine Sunday, to win the $35,000 LPGA Championship at Pleasant Valley Country Club by a single stroke over Betty Burfeindt.

It was the first tournament win since 1970 for Miss Mills, 33, of Laurel, Miss., who underwent surgery to correct ligament damage in her left wrist little more than a year ago. First prize money for the 19th LPGA Championship amounted to $5,250.

Miss Mills finished the tournament at four under par 288. Miss Burfeindt finished at 289 for 72 holes.

Miss Burfeindt landed only inches away from tying the tournament on a 100 yard approach shot that would have given her an eagle three on the 18th hole. Miss Mills birdied the hole only moments earlier.

Miss Mills started the day at one under par 218 for 54 holes on the hilly 6,130 yard par 73 course, trailing third round leaders Kathy Whitworth, Jane Blalock and Chaku Higuchi by one stroke.

All three of the leaders, however, ran into trouble on the front nine with double bogeys while Miss Mills and Miss Burfeindt battled it out for the lead.

Miss Mills took over the lead for good with a 30 foot putt for a birdie three on the 321-yard, 15th hole. She also birdied the 10th, 11th and 13th holes before sinking a 15 foot putt on the 18th green that turned out to be the winning shot.

Miss Mills was soaked with champagne moments after her victory was official by another golfer in the tournament, Jan Ferraris.

Miss Whitworth finished the day with a one over par 74 and placed third in the tournament at 291. She was followed by Donna Caponi Young and Miss Blalock at even par 292.

Miss Higuchi closed at one over par and Deborah Austin carded a two over par for the tournament.

Kemp wins first in Can-Am series

MOSPORT, Ont. (UPI) — Charlie Kemp, a 38-year-old Jackson, Miss., driver, steered his turbocharged Porsche to victory Sunday in the Labatt's Blue Can-Am, the inaugural race in the 10-event 1973 Canadian-American Challenge Cup Series.

Hans Wiedmer, of Hermosa Beach, Calif., was second, also in a Porsche, two laps behind Kemp. Bob Nagel, of Bethel Park, Pa., an outsider driving a Lola, was third.

Pre-race favorite Mark Donohue, who held the pole position, finished seventh, the victim of collision early in the race that ripped off the right front part of his Porsche's body.

Only 11 of the 20 starters finished the 80-lap, 197-mile race at this 2.45-mile country-side circuit 60 miles northeast of Toronto. An estimated crowd of 60,000 was on hand in perfect weather.

Scotter Patrick in a McLaren was fourth, and Steve Durst in another Porsche was fifth. Canadian John Cannon squeezed ahead of Donohue in his McLaren.

Kemp, a slow-talking former stockbroker, picked up $50,000 for his victory, which he said was "his most thrilling."

"We decided to go out there and be very conservative and just wait and see," he said. "We took off a little of the turbocharge and lost a little horsepower to be on the safe side."

Miss Whitworth finished the day with a one over par 74 and placed third in the tournament at 291. She was followed by Donna Caponi Young and Miss Blalock at even par 292.

Miss Higuchi closed at one over par and Deborah Austin carded a two over par for the tournament.

Saylorsburg exploded for 21 hits including six home runs Sunday to rout Kunkletown, 20-7, and hold on to first place in the Pocono Mountain League.

In the other game second place Bowmanstown scored four runs in the first inning and went on to beat Reiders, 5-3.

Bill Reese and Don Morkin each had two homers for 4-0 Saylorsburg while John Churatta and Ron Spinner each had one.

Connie Rehrig and Bob Ziegenfuss, both products of East Stroudsburg State College, had five of the seven hits for Bowmanstown, now 4-1.

SPECIAL TO THE RECORD
LONG POND — Mo Carter of Burlington, Ont., and Tony DeLorenzo of Troy, Mich., dominated Sunday's $20,000 Camel 500 GT Challenge at Pocono International Raceway.

Their Canadian flag-painted Camaro took the lead on the 32nd lap of the 180-lap contest and never relinquished it, finishing a full lap ahead of second place Mike Keyser of Townsend, Md., and Steve Behr, of New York, driving a Porsche Carrera.

Nick Craw, a 34-year-old bachelor from Washington, D.C. who fulfilled his boyhood dream two years ago by becoming a race driver, won his first "baby grand" race Saturday in the Goodrich Radial Series.

The next three finishers Sunday were: A Carrera driven by George Stone, Rockville, Md., and Mike Downs, Gaithersburg, Md.; a Camaro driven by Gene Felton and Bob Henning, both of Atlanta; and a Porsche 911 driven by George Dickson, Palatine, Ill., and Ed Wachs, of Chicago.

Carter and DeLorenzo were originally entered in the latter's 427 Corvette, but had to scrap plans for this car when the engine blew during nymometer tests Wednesday. A hurried call to Canada that day drafted Carter's Camaro, the backup car.

Carter, Canadian driver of the year in 1972, had won the touring overall class with the car in the Camel Starlite Three Hour at Daytona on Easter eve.

The winning team averaged 95.194 miles per hour in the 500-mile endurance on the new Pocono 2.8 mile course, pocketing $3,000 for their overall win and $500 for their GT class victory.

A Corvette entered by Lou D'Amico, Bayside, L.I., and Bob Farrell, Holidaysburg, posted a qualifying speed of over 102 mph to win the pole position in the 60-car field, but retired early in the race with transmission problems.

Carter, DeLorenzo win Camel 500

In Saturday's race, Craw's BMW 2002 outran a field of 64 domestic and imported compacts in the $10,000 event.

The starting order of the race was determined by the finish in the first of two heats. In the first heat, Earl Fellin of Kensington, Md., seized command early, developing a 16-second lead by midrace.

Just as the contest seemed a one-man show, Fellin's BMW lost brakes in two wheels, forcing him to slow down. Amos Johnson seized the lead on the 27th lap of the 36-lap race and led from there to the finish.

The Durham, N.C. driver had started 12th in the lineup. His winning Gremlin finished 13 seconds ahead of second-place Lanny Huey of Bethesda, Md., driving a Pinto. Despite his brake problems Fellin finished third, followed by Craw.

Johnson, the polesitter in the second heat, grabbed the early lead, but allowed Fellin to slip by on lap eight. Craw assumed command 20 laps later when Fellin pitted and dominated the rest of the race, finishing 42 seconds ahead of Johnson. Ray Walle of Princeton, N.J. was third in a rotary Mazda.

Fourth was A-Class winner Bruce Cargill of Voorheesville, N.Y. in a Colt. Cargill received $1,000 for his A-Class win while Craw pocketed $1,800 as B-Class and overall winner. Average speed of the race was 75.75 miles per hour.

Bobby U. wins Rex Mays for second year in row

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Bobby Unser, averaging 108 miles per hour, breezed to his second consecutive 150-mile Rex Mays Classic victory Sunday.

Unser, Albuquerque, N.M., who had claimed the pole position in time trials, took the lead at the start and held it for the next 41 miles on the one-mile State Fair Park Speedway. Roger McCluskey, who finished second, took the lead when Unser went into the pits during a yellow flag.

But Unser roared back into the lead in his Eagle-Offenhauser on the 76th lap and never relinquished it.

Unser qualified for the pole position with a top speed of 127.7 miles per hour. Time trials were held prior to the race after being postponed Saturday because of repairs being made to a portion of the track.

Gary Bettenhausen finished third, Wally Dallenbach fourth and Johnny Rutherford fifth.

Merzario and Carlos Pace of Brazil.

The battle between the four Matras and the three Ferraris lasted for 22-1/2 hours. It ended when the Ferrari of Belgium's Jacky Ickx and Britain's Brian Redman broke its engine as it tried to make up the one lap it trailed behind the eventual winner.

Only 21 of the 55 cars which started out at 4:00 p.m. Saturday were still running at the finish. The winners, who picked up $20,000 in first prize money, set a total distance record for the track inaugurated last year, covering 355 laps or 3,009.4 miles at an average speed of 125.3 miles per hour.

Before retiring his Matra-Simca during the night, French Formula One ace Francois Cevert established a lap record of 3 minutes 39.6 seconds, averaging 138.9 miles per hour for the 8.4 mile circuit in Northwest France.

Matra-Simca top Ferraris to win LeMans race again

LE MANS, France (UPI) — The all-French Matra-Simca of Henri Pescarolo and Gerard Larrousse cracked the three-car challenge of Italy's Ferraris today to win the Le Mans 24 hour sports car classic for the second straight year.

It was also two in row for the 30-year-old bearded Pescarolo, who won last year with Briton Graham Hill, and the first all-French win since 1950—a fitting result for the 50th anniversary of the race first run in 1923.

Matra closed the gap in the world's sports car championships, but still trail Ferrari 110-84, thanks to the second placed Ferrari 312P-3 of Italy's Arturo

Merzario and Carlos Pace of Brazil.

Petty captures Alamo victory

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Richard Petty took advantage of a freak accident to Buddy Baker in the last 75 miles Sunday to win the $100,000 Alamo 500 by two laps over rookie Darrell Waltrip.

Petty, a four-time NASCAR grand national champion, and Baker duelled wheel to wheel through 213 laps of the 250-lap event over the two-mile Texas World Speedway course.

At the start of the 214th lap, Baker led by a car length when a chunk of rubber came off his left front tire and knocked off a battery cable.

Baker coasted three quarters of the way around the track but finally had to call for a wrecker to push him to his pit. By the time his car was repaired, he was eight laps behind Petty's 1973 Dodge.

Petty all but coasted the last 37 laps to win his fourth race of the season in 15 starts. The $13,170 first prize pushed his earnings this year to $79,440. Baker, who led 163 laps to only 79 for Petty, finished sixth.

The only other leaders were Cale Yarborough who led one lap during a series of pit stops midway through the race, and Joe Frasson, who led for seven laps during the same period.

Petty, who led 10 different times during the race in his duel with Baker, averaged 145.114 miles an hour. Waltrip's finish was the highest for a rookie in a Grand National race in NASCAR history. The previous best was third by Dick Brooks in 1969.

Triple Crown winner begins well-earned rest

NEW YORK (UPI) — Secretariat started a well-earned vacation Sunday after winning the Triple Crown with an amazing performance in the Belmont Stakes Saturday but the big red colt didn't act as though he wanted a rest at all.

Secretariat hardly showed the effects of the gruelling campaign that carried him to a record-breaking victory in the Kentucky Derby, a disputed record in winning the Preakness Stakes, and one of the greatest races ever run in winning the Belmont Stakes by 31 lengths and setting an American record for 1 1/2 miles. The powerful chestnut colt was awake at four o'clock Sunday morning, looking for his breakfast. A few hours later he was circling the walking ring outside his barn and he had to be dragged away from the grass he wanted to nibble.

"He may not want a vacation but I need one," said his proud and delighted trainer, Lucien Laurin before he headed for the airport to relax for a few days at his Florida home.

Not even the immortal Man o'War, the great Count Fleet or mighty Citation won the Belmont with the incredible speed unleashed by Secretariat.

The long-striding colt blazed across the finish line in 2:24 flat. That time not only shattered the Belmont Stakes record of 2:26 3-5 set by Gallant Man in 1957 but made a shambles of the American record of 2:26 1-5 set by Going Abroad at Aqueduct on Oct. 12, 1964. The world record was set by Fiddle Isle, March 31, 1970, when he won the San Luis Rey Handicap at Santa Anita in 2:23 over a partly downhill grass course.

For the next two months Secretariat will be denied the opportunity to expend his boundless energy on the race track. If he doesn't try to kick the barn down, present plans call for his return to competition at Saratoga in August.

"Definitely. He definitely will run again," said Laurin, scotching talk that Secretariat might be retired since there were no more worlds to conquer.

The colt will be pointed toward the $100,000 Travers Stakes at Saratoga on Aug. 18 and probably prep for that 1 1/4 miles race in the $25,000 Jim Dandy Stakes there on Aug. 8.

Secretariat now has won five of his six races this year, suffering his lone defeat when he was third in the Wood Memorial prior to the Kentucky Derby.

Laurin still was at a loss to explain that race. "Go and ask Secretariat. If he tells you, come and tell me," he suggested.

This probably will be Secretariat's last year of racing. He is scheduled to be delivered to a syndicate of breeders, who paid $6,000,000 for him, on Nov. 15.

There was speculation that the syndicate members might waive their rights and let Secretariat race next year. But that was unlikely despite the willingness of some of them.

"I would love to see him race at four but that is impossible. What he has done today is enough for any horse," said Mrs. Helen Tweedy of the Meadow Stable after the Belmont Stakes.

Secretariat set an almost unbelievable pace in the Belmont. And it had no effect upon him as he rolled on and on.

Twitchell five-hits Padres as Phillies win 11-0 romp

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Wayne Twitchell spaced five hits and hurled his second consecutive shutout Sunday to lead the Philadelphia Phillies to a 11-0 decision over the San Diego Padres.

Twitchell ended a personal 0-30 hitless streak on the season with two singles and a double. The single in the second inning ended the streak and drove in Del Unser with the first run of the game.

The Phils scored two more runs in the inning on Cesar Tovar's double and walks to Willie Montanez and Greg Luzinski. The Phillies scored three unearned runs in the third when Twitchell's sacrifice bunt was misplayed after singles by Bob Boone and Larry Bowa. Boone scored as Tovar grounded out and Denny Doyle doubled home Bowa and Tovar.

The Phils added another run in the fourth when Luzinski doubled, took third on Tommy Harper's groundout and scored on Unser's sacrifice fly.

The Phils erupted for four more runs in the eighth. Luzinski doubled home a pair and Tommy Hutton singled home two others.

Twitchell walked one and struck out eight in raising his season record to 5-2. He shut out Houston last Tuesday.

Mayberry, Splittorf team as Royals defeat Yankees

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Big John Mayberry clouted his 14th homer of the season and Paul Splittorf recorded his ninth win of the season when the Kansas City Royals erupted for five runs in the fourth inning Sunday en route to a 7-4 triumph over the New York Yankees that snapped a five-game losing streak.

Mayberry connected in the second inning to record his 56th RBI. The Royals scored another run when Paul Schaal singled, took second on Gene Michael's error and went home on Fran Healy's single.

The Yankees tied it in the third when Matty Alou singled to right and reached second when Fred Patek made an error on Bobby Murcer's grounder. Jim Ray Hart singled to center to score Alou and Graig Nettles followed with another single, sending Murcer home.

Patek drove in the last two of the five fourth-inning Royals' runs with a double that sent loser Mel Stottlemyre, 7-6, to the showers. That gave Kansas City a 7-2 advantage as they collected five hits, two intentional walks, and a sacrifice fly by Gail Hopkins in the big inning.

The Yankees got their final two runs in the ninth when Thurman Munson homered after Nettles had doubled.

Splittorf who went the distance for the seventh time this year, is now 9-3 on the season.

Hunter blanks Detroit by 5-0

OAKLAND (UPI) — Jim "Catfish" Hunter, treated to an 11-hit attack, shutout Detroit for the second straight day on three singles Sunday in pitching the Oakland A's to a 5-0 victory over the Tigers.

Bill North led the A's offense with three hits, a walk and a stolen base.

Oakland scored single runs in the first, second, third, fifth and seventh innings with five different players driving in the tallies.

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Larry Hise, Jim Holt and Bobby Darwin each clubbed two-run homers Sunday as the Minnesota Twins routed the Baltimore Orioles 11-4.

Hise's seventh home run climaxed a seven-run third inning as the Twins chased losing pitcher Doyle Alexander in favor of reliever Orlando Pena.

Holt ripped his sixth home run in the fifth inning with Steve Braun aboard on a single to insure Dick Woodson's fifth victory, which was aided by the relief work of Ray Corbin.

Darwin's two-run homer came in the ninth inning off reliever Eddie Watt after Rod Carew had singled.

Baltimore scored twice in the fourth inning and added single runs in the sixth and eighth innings.

Harrison one hits St. Louis

ATLANTA (UPI) — Right-hander Roric Harrison pitched a one-hitter for eight innings and hit a home run Sunday to give the Atlanta Braves a 5-2 victory over St. Louis in a second game of a doubleheader after Ted Simmons drove in three runs in the first game which the Cardinals won 4-3.

Harrison, an ex-Oriole making only his third start of the season had a perfect game going through the first five innings but Ken Reitz led off the sixth with a triple down the first base line. In the ninth, he needed relief help from Danny Frisella who picked up his fourth save.

Reitz scored the Cardinals' first of the second game on a sacrifice fly by Jose Cruz when rightfielder Ralph Garr held the ball momentarily. The other Card came in the ninth after Harrison walked the leadoff batter Ted Sizemore and Frisella gave up a single to Joe Torre and a sacrifice fly to Luis Melendez.

Jack O'Brian's

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Sekou Toure, Marxist dictator of Guinea, stole a trick from applause-disciplined U.S. TV studio audiences: he decreed every Guinean must applaud each mention of Toure's name.

British rock-star Lulu spun off husband Maurice Gibb of the Bee-Gees . . . Claire Boothe Luce gave her "The Woman" a shot in the deficit when it was a tryout disaster; it's near smash status now; she'll collect a fortune if it can weather the sizzle season . . . Sol Hurok may take over Manhattan Center, object — ballet . . . Have an odd rumor: John Lindsay and Paramount Pictures, Bob Evans casting bread upon tepid political waters . . . Octogenarian pianist Artur Schnabel's "My Young Years" proves the old plunker is a cad: not only details his old seductions — he even tells their names.

The 54-room Park Ave. digs the late John D. Rockefeller occupied, after standing empty for years, is being chopped into finer lean-tos; the largest remaining flat of 34 rooms has been bought by computer tycoon Sol Steinberg for $750,000 . . . The N.Y. cops-&heroin case is ready to bust out again . . . New York Mag's gathering a swipec at press agent-promoter Early Whirly Blackwell.

Do your sore ears a favor — go see Benny Goodman at the Rainbow Grill . . . Never saw or heard Benny more relaxed; brassy genius Bobby Hackett doubtless soothes the brilliantly edgy Benny this time; and it's a group worthy of each other's virtuosity: Hackett on horn, gifted bass enthusiast Milt Hinton plainly adoring his work, Bobby Rosengarden moonlighting from his Dick Cavett band just to drum with the great musicians; a young lad named Peter Appleyard who makes a vibraharp funny, and John Bunch on piano . . . Such superb instrumentalists are their own peers and plainly lift each other to unscheduled brilliance seldom harkened to; they're just marvelous.

Fatty Arbuckle's widow Minta Durfee had surgery for a fractured hip . . . Betty Grable, huzzah, was discharged from St. John's Hospital . . . The cynics on the pro-tennis tour call regular churchgoer Stan Smith "J.C."; Call it the Age of Sacriligious Insolence.

Don't think TV sports is just pointing a camera at games — TV is The Boss: CBS-TV nixed the Jets-Falcons 1 p.m. Nov. 25 game and ordered it set back to 4 p.m. . . . Saw nary an obit about the death of Jay Cohane who sold his Cutty Sark firm to Schenley for some $100 million: in Palm Beach, of emphysema. Cardinal Cooke presided at the ultra-private burial services on Long Island. Jay's fortune's said to exceed the 100-mil. and the scuttle is, half will go to Catholic charities.

Jay was a Prohibition operator who never had an arrest record, a notably "square" man in a wild era whose luck held when illegal liquor went out, who believed Wilson Mizner's admonition "Never get rich in the limelight" and ended his considerable years luxuriously between Palm Beach and Westport, Conn. . . . And where there's a will there's a relative who minds terribly being cut off, has lawyer, will litigate.

Former Jackie Gleason Show aide Jim Bernard died in New Orleans. Jim owned the Southbury, Conn., Summer Playhouse . . . The new "Shaft" series won't be held off next-fall TV by the writers strike: somehow a flock of scripts were ready, no doubt before the strike began. Richard Roundtree will star as the leeringly-named John Shaft . . . We wrote here months ago the writers would end their strike in June: watch!

Carlo Ponti's new French film firm's titled Cipi Productions; after Sophia and his four-year-old son . . . "A Little Night Music" collects more stars visiting backstage after curtain than during the festivities: Doug Fairbanks Jr., the Robert Montgomerys and Mrs. Harry Lillis Crosby helped Hermione Gingold and Glynis Johns celebrate the show's 100th performance with lots of gush-gush-goo-goo . . . Girlish shrieks filled the midnight air at the Im-provisation when two former May Queens at H'wood's famous Westlake School for stars' feminine-offspring met: Candy Bergen and Melinda Fee of TV's "Guiding Light" sudser. Melinda's mom is Astrid Alwyn, a 40s cinema bunny.

"Seesaw" scorers Cy Coleman and Dorothy Fields have a third Bdwy. musical for next season: "Pin-Ups" by Leonard Gershe whose "Butterflies Are Free" was the most impressive first-Bdwy. play in decades for any author. Ran for years, hit movie, TV series next. (It's a history of the WW II Pinup Girl.)

The mailbag: we mentioned great old Six Day Biker Alfred Letourneur whose partner was Girard De Baets who died six years ago but Alf's sturdy and fit at 65. His aim: to keep peddling until, like the alltime 6-day champ Reggie MacNamara, he passes the 85 marker . . . And a huzzah from "Hogan's Heroes" Bob Crane who adored the series about Big Band musicians — certainly because Bob's clocked a lot of paradiddling himself, on drums with name musicians, notably including Doc Severinsen.

One of the loveliest, hottest, endearing talents of the last few years got hooked on junk living with a performer who ducked when her agonies began and her career twisted: she's back on the track and has all our rooting prayers . . . There will be a two-and-a-half day eruption in honor of four-Oscar songwriter Sammy Cahn's 60th birthday starting June 22nd.

Ann Landers

Buddy system

Dear Ann Landers: You must be very naive to question "Midwest Authority's" statement that 80 per cent of all firemen-husbands are unfaithful. If that figure was a surprise you'll be shocked to learn that 90 per cent of all married policemen cheat. Why? Because they have more opportunities.

The Buddy System (two officers riding together) is a perfect set-up. One sits in the police car with his babe while his buddy is parked in a nearby car (usually hers) with another doll. And how many people have seen policemen parked on side streets petting up a storm? All the while their wives think they are out risking their lives to make the cities safe and protect the American way of life.

I am one of those wives who thought it could never happen to me—until it did. My self-confidence was shattered and I'm still a wreck even though he swore he didn't know why he did it and promised it would never happen again.

Sign me — Still Hurting

Dear S.H.: Your statement that 90 per cent of all married policemen cheat is as absurd as the woman who labeled 80 per cent of all firemen unfaithful. Where do you dames get your figures?

Cheating has virtually nothing to do with opportunity. A man who is hell-bent on cheating will MAKE the opportunity, while a man who has no interest in cheating will pass up the opportunities and do something better with his time and energy.

Dear Ann Landers: After fretting most of the morning over your translation of "oy vay!" I decided to check with an authority.

Here is what Leo Rosten says in "The Joys of Yiddish" (pages 273 and 274—which, incidentally, are hilarious). "The best translation for 'vay' is 'woe', although 'pain' is the common interpretation. 'Oy vay!' means 'Woe is me!' 'Oy' is often used as a lead-off for 'Oy vay,' which is an all-purpose exclamation to express anything from trivial delight to abysmal woe. 'Oy vay' is the short form of 'Oy vay iz mir!' which is an omnibus phrase for everything from personal pain to empathic condolences. 'Vay' comes from the German 'weh' meaning 'woe.'"

Morris Fishbein, M.D.

Dear Morris: That I should have stumbled on this one is a disgrace! All I can say is, "Oy vay iz mir!" Thanks for writing, dear, and my love to Anna.

Dear Ann Landers: I agree with you that when bright and interesting people get together, it is not uncommon (or rude) for them to interrupt one another. This makes for lively conversation. But what about the bores who interrupt just because they want the floor? We have such a person in our office. No matter what the topic, even when no one is talking to her, she butts in and takes over. More than once she has derailed a fascinating story.

How does one silence such a clattertrap?

Bugged in Boise

Dear Bugged: There IS a way. The minute she opens her mouth — open yours. Say, "Please don't interrupt Bill. We're all fascinated with his story!"

What? Me work?

School has only been out for a week or so and already mothers are distressed when they make up the beds around 10 a.m. and find an unemployed teen-ager in it.

For some reason, Horatio Alger doesn't have the shtick he used to. Nine-year-old boys don't want to tinker in the garage anymore . . . or turn a paper route into a newspaper monopoly . . . or tap dance in saloons. (For that matter, some 20-year-old men make Tom Sawyer look like an account executive.)

As I shook out a blanket before noon the other day and a body rolled out, I said, "Hey! Peter Pan!"

"Who is it?" mumbled an out-of-work voice.

"Would you believe Tinker Bell?"

"What do you want?"

"I don't know how to tell you this, but somewhere between the weekly allowance and your Social Security is a twilight zone called employment."

"Are you going to talk about a job again?"

"No, I am going to tell you a story. Once upon a time, there was a little boy called Peter Pan who never wanted to grow up. He just wanted to play all night and sleep all day. When his family asked him what he wanted to be when he grew up he said, 'A tax write-off.'"

"Peter had a shadow who followed him around everywhere. It was called Mother (or Finkerbelle as Peter referred to her.)"

"One day, Peter couldn't stand Finkerbelle's nagging and he gathered together three of his friends and said, 'All of you who believe in watching Johnny Carson every night and not getting out of bed until Hollywood Squares comes on, clap your hands!' Three of his friends applauded vigorously and together they flew to Hardly-Ever land where no one got any older."

"Their adventures were marred by three incidents: a chance meeting with a villain, Capt. George Meany, who chased after them with union memberships, a snapping crocodile who guarded the only refrigerator in Hardly-Ever land, and an Italian princess who refused to sell him pizza without cash.

"Peter finally came home, admitted to Finkerbelle that a job was the American way and got a job at Jack-in-the-Box on the catsup dispenser."

"I thought fairy tales were supposed to have happy endings," he said yawning.

"And he ate regularly ever after. How much happier can you get?"

"Daddy, I'm going out with a real gentleman tonight... when I said I didn't feel like walking, Herman offered to borrow your car!"

A rational alternative to rationing gas.

What's right with this picture? Well if it were true, we'd be saving 28 billion, 560 million gallons of gas every year.

How did we arrive at that figure? Since we're a nation of national averages, we know the average car uses about 735 gallons of gas a year. The Beetle, 399". Turn the eighty-five million average cars on the road right now into Beetles, and it works out to a saving of 28,560,000,000 (give or take a few gallons).

Now we haven't figured out all the water and antifreeze that would be saved with the Beetle's air-cooled engine.

Nor can we compute the extra parking space that would be around. Not to mention all the money people would be able to save in a world of Volkswagens.

But we know for sure that this is no pipe dream. There already are police car Beetles up in Ossining. And a custom built, chauffeur-driven Bug in L. A. And Volkswagen taxis all over Honduras. And a Beetle that herds cattle in Missouri.

So with gas prices going up and rationing becoming a reality, the Beetle never looked so good. In fact, you might almost call it beautiful.

Few things in life work as well as a Volkswagen.

Still cross

CROSS: (Q.) Jerry and I got along fine for about two months. One night at a party he took a cross and chain I was wearing around my neck and started wearing it himself. When the party was over he kept it.

Pretty soon after that he lost interest in me, but he did not give the cross and chain back. I called him to ask him about it and he said he would bring it to me, but he never did.

I have called him twice more, and he has promised again, but he still has the cross.

Should I go to his house and ask for it? I don't want to pester his parents, but the cross is important to me. I honestly am not trying to get him back, just the cross and chain.

No Luck in North Carolina

(A.) Any girl who gives—or lets a boy take—a ring or bracelet or necklace or pin or anything of value, either real or sentimental, takes the risk you have taken.

Unless you personally know Jerry's parents and are friendly with them do not go to his house to try to get your property back.

Writing him a firm but friendly letter asking him to return the cross and chain might help. A letter has more impact than a telephone call on some people.

HAIRCUT: (Q.) My face is a full moon and my nose is too big. My hair is straight and waist length. I am going to college and don't want to look so high schoolish. How can I get my hair cut to make my face look better and more mature?

Too Much Hair in Connecticut

(A.) I suggest a short cut with a half bang sweeping across your forehead to one side.

Have it done at a good beauty salon and ask the stylist to show you how to roll it.

Short hair is growing more and more popular with young women. It is more practical than all that flowing stuff. You don't have to stop every minute to get it out of your eyes.

MOTHER SAYS NO: (Q.) I like Tim very much and he likes me. We have been seeing each other privately because my mother says I'm too young for boys. I am 14. How can I tell her I'm not too young to date? All my girl friends do.

Old Enough in Massachusetts

(A.) The way you phrase it sounds nice. But what you are really doing is sneaking out to see your boy friend. This is a practice that gets lots of girls into lots of trouble.

Some parents think that 14 is too young for a girl to have outside dates. I do not disagree with them on this, but I do believe 14 is old enough for girls to have boy friends.

Talk to your mother about Tim. Ask her to let you invite him to your house to meet her and your father. Ask her to let him visit you at home at reasonable intervals. Promise to follow her rules about these visits.

Promise yourself not ever to sneak out again, with Tim or any boy.

Spreader is to be completely mounted and operable with PTO hydraulic pump, 6 gal. reservoir for hydraulic oil, suction linefilter, and a minimum capacity of 7.24 cu. yds. HOPPER — All 10 Ga. H.R. steel. Electric welded construction, 45 degree slope on sides, flexible, replaceable drag chain sealers over chain, material gate to have flexible lower edge and gear jack adjust.

CONVEYOR — 24" inside width minimum, three-sixteenth steel wear plate, rear end to have rollover plate and wiper. 2-five-sixteenth" pitch high strength steel pinlink chain with seven-sixteenth" pins. 3/4" X 1 1/2" half oval steel cross bars welded to every other link. Drag chain tension maintained by two spring loaded H.D. idler adj. Conveyor to be driven by two foot speed high torque hydraulic motors.

SPINNER — three-sixteenth" X 20" spinner with 6 replaceable vanes. Driven by low speed high torque hydraulic motor mounted on the lower end of the material chute, thus eliminating the need for spinner shaft of varying length thru chute and costly spinner shaft bearings. Three material deflectors easily adjusted with no tools. Two material guides to direct the flow of material to the desired spot on the spinner disc. Quick adjustable with no tools.

SCREENS — Slanted and hinged in the center. The price bid is to be the complete price (less exempt taxes) delivered in Pocono Pines. Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check in the amount of ten per cent (10 per cent) of the total amount of bid made payable to the Supervisors of Tobyhanna Township which will be retained to pay for any damage or loss to the Township in case the successful bidder shall neglect or refuse to enter into a contract in accordance with his bid.

The Supervisors reserve the right to reject any or all bids. By order of the Board of Supervisors of Tobyhanna Township, Herbert Hixson, Secretary.

Worried about answering a blind box number ad? (because you don't know who the advertiser is?)

If you are worried about answering one of these blind ads - since it may be your own firm - simply do this: Place your letter of application in an envelope addressed to the box number and seal it. Then put the envelope in the mail. The ad will be placed in the Classified Dept., The Pocono Record, and enclose the names you do NOT want to receive your reply. If one of the companies (or individuals) you listed placed the ad, we will simply discard your reply. Sorry, but we cannot return your letter without violating the confidence of our advertisers.

Realtor's Help in a Long-Distance Move.
For a number of reasons, a move to another town may become necessary.
How can your Broker help you if you must move to a new town?
Besides selling your old home, your Broker can help you find another in the new town. Sometimes he personally knows Brokers there. Or, your Broker may contact brokers in your new location. He will tell them you're soon to be buying there. He will give them a list of your requirements in a house. This will include your preference in location, price, size, etc.
On your arrival, get in touch with your new Broker. He will have a selected group of houses waiting
